LUCAS 'PRESUMES' THAT HE'LL LEAVE WELFARE BOARD

Thanks Organizations and Individuals 'Who Have Contributed' to Success of the Group.

Arthur Lucas, chairman of the Georgia Board of Public Welfare, said yesterday he "presumed" he would not be reappointed to the board when his term expires March 3.

Declaring he has discussed neither his reappointment nor replacement on the board with Governor Rivers, Lucas, Atlanta theater executive, issued the following statement:

"In severing my official connection with the State Board of Public Welfare, I want to thank those organizations and individuals who have contributed so greatly to whatever success has been achieved by the board within the last three years.

"It has been the earnest endeavor of all of us on the board to so administer the great responsibility entrusted to us as to render an entirely adequate and proper service to those unfortunate placed in our care. At the same time, we have sought to discharge our responsibility to the state, bearing in mind that all funds expended were public funds and must be raised by taxation.

great dream come true as I realize that new buildings there, suitable in every respect, are nearing completion. Other improvements have been made, and truly a long cherished hope has been realized.

"We have been able to make many long needed improvements at all of the other state institutions under the jurisdiction of the Board of Public Welfare, and, therefore, I am profoundly grateful to the press of Georgia, to the Georgia delegation in Washington, to the Governor of the state, to the members of the legislature, to the federal agencies, the national committee for mental hygiene, to all the members of the State Board of Public Welfare and all others who by their efforts, have made this great progress possible."

RESERVIST CLASSES TO OPEN SEMESTER

Officers Will Make Final Plans for National Defense Week.

Opening of the second semester of the 1939-1940 school year for the Organized Reserves will be observed tonight at the Georgia Tech military department coincident with the marshalling of forces in final arrangements for the opening Monday of National Defense Week.

Lieutenant Colonel Clifford R. Jones, executive officer of the Atlanta military district, announced the nine classes will be assembled for semi-monthly instruction work among reserve officers.

"The First Battle of the Marne" will be the topic of a lecture before the group, medical and cavalry classes by Captain George G. Elms, while tactical problems and organization plans will be studied by other classes.

The Fifth District chapter, Reserve Officers' Association, will meet at 7:30 o'clock, preceding the class work, and the executive committee of the chapter will meet for dinner at 6 o'clock at Peachtree Alley, Captain Robert L. Watkins, president, announced.

Major Dee Bradley, Atlanta chairman, will discuss detailed plans for a district-wide observance of National Defense Week, to end on February 22.

Subjects for the various groups at the school were announced by Colonel Young as follows: The 320 field artillery, aerial photograph reading, Captain Henry A. Robinson; 163d brigade, counter offensive, Lieutenant Colonel Fonville McWhorter and Captain O. L. Amsler; 326th infantry, new organization of the army, Captain Lucius L. Beck; 524th coast artillery, anti-aircraft with the division, Captain T. C. Wesley Jr.; Lieutenants Louis R. Lefkoff and J. D. Shearouse; signal corps, map problem, Lieutenant Herbert L. Reed; 422d infantry, principles of tank employment, Captain Joseph T. Clark and Lieutenant Thomas H. Fickett.

A Slayer Strikes, Under Old Mansion's Gabled Roof

Only one remains alive. Miss Mary Richards, left, sister of Joseph Richards, of Atlanta, found her two sisters, Margaret, second from left, and Ann, right, dead of pistol wounds when she returned from the day's teaching at the Oliver Springs (Tenn.) High school. In the center is her mother, Mrs. W. B. Richards, who died last October. A negro boy servant also was fatally shot in the reputedly haunted Richards home.

The old house of many rooms and gables, reputedly haunted, where an Atlanta's two sisters and their negro house boy were found slain. The landmark, situated in Oliver Springs, Tenn., is the birthplace of Joseph Richards, CCC official, of 1085 Deckner avenue, S. W.

Sisters of Atlantan Found Slain In Their 'Haunted' Tennessee Home

Joseph Richards, CCC Official Here, Was Brother of Two Victims; Third Sister Finds Their Bodies; Servant Boy Also Shot Fatally.

An ancient gabled mansion with a round wooden tower set watchfully above its second floor—a house often fearfully regarded by superstitious folk as haunted—yesterday cast a lengthy shadow of tragedy to envelop an Atlanta federal official.

Joseph Richards, scion of a prominent Tennessee family, executive of the Civilian Conservation Corps headquarters here, and resident of 1085 Deckner avenue, S. W., made a hurried automobile journey to his old home in Oliver Springs, Tenn., where two of his sisters—one his twin—and a Negro servant boy were dead of pistol wounds.

Only last October he had traveled in the same way for the funeral of his mother, Mrs. W. B. Richards, widow of a wealthy merchant whose family connection ran through much of Tennessee history.

Horrible Discovery. Neighbors in mid-afternoon Monday, summoned by the cries of his youngest sister, Mary, a school teacher, had found his twin, Ann, shot once through the head; the other sister, Margaret, shot through the head and throat; and the Negro, Leonard "Powder" Brown, 16, lifeless from a head wound which might have been self-inflicted.

The teacher sister had come upon the tragic scene utterly without warning as she returned from the Oliver Springs High school about 3 o'clock Monday. The two sisters had died much earlier than the Negro boy, Margaret obviously had struggled desperately with her assailant, and had fallen over the bannisters from the second floor of the picturesque, many-roomed house. Ann had been slain in the kitchen, and Brown was found on the stairs with one arm thrust through the bannisters.

A striking coincidence was that a suit of clothing which had been given to the servant by Ann, and which she later had retaken because the boy felt "sighted," had been sent to the home from Atlanta by her brother. It was his habit to return his worn clothing to the family residence for the use of house servants.

Emphasizing the dark theme that the 50-odd-year-old house is haunted was the story told by a neighbor that she escaped death because "something" told her to flee when she called at the mansion about 1 o'clock, the hour tentatively fixed as the time of the sisters' death.

"I heard some one crying in the house," the neighbor, Mrs. O. P. Jones, said. "I knocked on the back door. Then I heard some noises and couldn't tell what they were. I went around to the front door."

Neighbor Knocks. "As I knocked at the front door I heard two men talking just inside. I know they were men, and white men. I'll never forget their voices, and I could identify them now."

"I started to knock again, but something told me not to do it. I thought there might be ghosts in the house. A lot of folks around here are sure it is haunted. So I left."

Neither Richards nor any of his sisters is married. The family is of Welsh descent. The home is near the residence of the late Harvey Hannah, famed Tennessee politician, and is a landmark of the region.

TWEEDSMUIR SUFFERS CONCUSSION OF BRAIN

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. (UP)—Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada, was unconscious for several hours today after an accidental fall at Government House in which he suffered a slight brain concussion.

Associates described his injury as not serious. The circumstances of his fall in the bathroom were not revealed. Lord Tweedsmuir became governor-general in 1935, and announced recently that he would return to England when his term expires this summer.

HOUSEBOY BELIEVED SLAYER OF SISTERS

Sheriff Leans to Theory He Was Angered by Some Fancied Slight.

OLIVER SPRINGS, Tenn., Feb. 6. (AP)—A coroner's jury will attempt tomorrow to pick the truth from a jumbled mass of evidence surrounding the murder of two spinster sisters in their old-fashioned turreted mansion which has been a landmark to this community for half a century.

The finger of suspicion pointed to a 16-year-old Negro houseboy, Leonard (Powder) Brown, who was found in the house with a bullet in his brain, and a pistol clutched in his hand.

Sheriff Robert Smith leaned strongly to the theory that young Brown, angered by an imagined slight from his employers, shot the women, Miss Ann Richards, 48, and Miss Margaret Richards, 46, and then turned the pistol on himself.

But Joseph Richards, of Atlanta, a brother of the slain women, said: "I can't help but wonder if a fourth person may have had something to do with their deaths."

The gun was identified as one stolen from the home of a neighbor, where Brown worked at odd chores.

Sheriff Smith said he had been told the Negro had made vague threats against the sisters and had "sulked" after Miss Ann asked him to return a suit of clothes given him for Christmas, because he seemed unappreciative.

Many townspeople expressed the opinion the Negro was incapable of such a crime since he was known to be timid and easily frightened.

BIRDCAGES ARE OUT THIS SPRING

So are Leaning Towers of Pisa. So are Buck Rogers' Rocket Planes. This Spring, hats make sense. Vogue says, "For once, the time-honored and dusty jokes men make about women's hats will hang pointlessly in mid-air." The stabilizing influence in Spring hat fashions make them easier to wear than in many years. Brims cast becoming shadows. Many crowns are deepened to sit firmly on your head. Skullcaps sit far back and give you a fresh-faced schoolgirl look. You're going to love hearing your husband say, "Now, that's what I call a pretty hat." Several Nations Seek Rights to 'Invisible' Paint

Max Gardner, Spartanburg (S. C.) chemist who claims to have invented a paint which makes airplanes invisible 500 feet from the ground, was in Atlanta yesterday "on business."

The chemist declined to say whether he planned any demonstration here. He admitted, however, he had been approached by several governments for the rights to the new paint.

"At the present time," he said, "it is too early for any definite announcements. I still need time to perfect the paint further."

Savours are scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night, to be conducted by Canon Charles F. Schilling. Quiet day will be observed Friday, beginning with communion at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, conducted by Bishop H. J. Mikell.

Services at the Immaculate Conception church will be held at 7:45 o'clock this morning, 12 o'clock noon, and 8 o'clock tonight. The "Stations of the Cross" service at noon will be held each day during Lent, followed by mass.

REA PROGRAM STARTED. VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—Monday marked an important date in the history of rural electrification here, when actual work started on the Lowndes county project. There's Nothing (Much) to It, Says Army Blackout Driver

FORT BENNING, Ga., Feb. 6.—(P)—The motorist who wonders what blackout night driving is like is assured by Corporal Lemuel Allen, ruddy-cheeked artilleryman, that "there's nothing to it."

Corporal Allen qualifies as an expert through nocturnal touch-and-whoo work in war games in Hawaii and at Fort Benning.

He explained at a mess hall table today while rain drummed on the acres of canvas and tarpaper housing more than 8,000 men of the army's first division here on winter maneuvers. (The rain meant no field work.)

"Just go slow and watch the road," he said.

The "slow" suggestion boils down to five to ten miles an hour. At that speed the sensation of steering over a cliff is modified. Major objects can usually be discerned.

SNOWS AND RAINS DAMAGE STREETS

$75,000 Will Be Sought for Repairs in City; Crisis Created.

The freezes, snows, thaws and rains of the last seven weeks wrought historic damage to streets and roads of Atlanta and Fulton county, creating a crisis upon which officials yesterday were planning concerted attack.

Clarke Donaldson, city chief of construction, sent four survey parties over the city, and announced he would seek a special fund of $75,000 from city council at its meeting February 19, in addition to putting every resource of the department immediately to work on repairs.

County forces, directed by A. A. Clarke, superintendent of public works, will have to contend with the worst situation Clarke has experienced in his 42 years with the department.

Work will be started the moment the weather clears.

"Most of Atlanta's streets have gone seven years without asphalt capping," W. Rex LeFevre, assistant construction chief in charge of streets, said yesterday. "They are obsolete. The fund we will seek of council will be to resurface the streets."

The department has $40,000 available for repairs now, and will begin first upon the most serious spots.

In the county, Clarke estimated that serious damage had been done to paved and secondary roads alike.

"It will take two or three months just to repair the holes," he said. "We will throw every available man and all possible material into the job."

ings are painted on the back of each vehicle. The first driver is the pathfinder "and the fall guy if anything goes wrong," the corporal said. Others concentrate in watching the white splotch of the truck ahead. Accidents in the Fort Benning night maneuvers have been few, although here and there over the trails are pine trees that never will be the same again.

A soldier since 1932, Corporal Allen is from Madison Barracks, N. Y. He is a member of headquarters battery of the Fifth (155 Howitzers) field artillery.

Transportation Set-Up. The scope of the streamlined army's transportation work is indicated by the fact tables of organization for a standard division (8,960 officers and men) call for 1,139 motor vehicles, from ambulances to wreckers. And that is not regarded as full transport mechanization.

"The complete motorization of the infantry division," declares a publication of the Command and General Staff School, "is neither desirable nor practical. To do so brings about the creation of a 'mass of vehicles of only intermittent use,' a policy against which our former chief of staff, General Douglas MacArthur, has warned us."

Supplies and, on long journeys, troops, are moved by trucks in "shuttle" relays. The average vehicle in the army's olive drab parade is 10 miles out of a gallon of gasoline.

INSTITUTION HERE SHARES IN ESTATE

Atlanta University Is Legatee of Late Edward Harkness, Philanthropist.

Atlanta University will receive one-fourth of the residuary shares of the estate of the late Edward Stephen Harkness after the death of his widow, it was disclosed in New York yesterday with filing of the will for probate.

Although no exact estimate of the entire estate has been made, it is expected to be in excess of $10,000,000. During his life, the late philanthropist gave away more than $100,000,000.

No official notification of the grant had been received last night by Miss Florence M. Read, treasurer of the university, but it was expected to arrive here shortly.

Harkness was a former classmate of the late Edward T. Ware, former president of the Negro university, and Dean Sage, of New York, present chairman of the board of trustees.

PELLEY DISPROVES ACCORD WITH DIES

Brands Notorious Letters as Forgeries; His Ex-Aide Admits Authorship.

(Picture on Page 26.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(P)—William Dudley Pelley, goateed fuhrer of the Silver Shirt Legion, appeared dramatically out of the nowhere today to explode an idea that he and Representative Martin Dies, of Texas, had an under-the-table agreement.

Pelley nonchalantly showed up on Capitol Hill and branded the now-notorious "Pelley letters" as rank forgeries. These letters, signed with the name "Pelley," had predicted Dies would not go out of his way to call Pelley for questioning.

Then the following events occurred: David Mayne, of Washington, former aide of Pelley's, bluntly asserted before the subcommittee "right out of the clear air."

Fierly Critic. Representative Hook, Democrat, Michigan, a fiery critic of Dies, and the man who put the letters into the Congressional Record, got up in the house, withdrew the letters from the Record, and proclaimed that he "wouldn't be too small to extend my apologies to anybody."

Hook said he "deeply regretted" the incident and hoped it would not be drawn out further. Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, intervening, said that "it might be conceded that the case of this material did to some extent violate the rules of the house."

Den in Asheville, N. C., Sheriff Laurence E. Brown dispatched telegrams to the Washington, D. C., police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Dies committee asking that Pelley be held for him. Pelley was convicted in 1935 of violating the state "blue sky" securities law, and a superior court judge has accused him of violating the conditions on which his jail sentence was suspended.

GARNER BREAKS TIE; AIDS ECONOMY BLOC

Cast First Vote in Nearly Six Years on CAA Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(P)—Vice President Garner cast his first vote in the senate in almost six years today, and thereby helped economy advocates win a hair-line victory.

Garner struck his blow for lower expenditure by breaking a 34-34 tie on the first of a series of proposed amendments, stripping $1,178,739 from the amount the house had voted for the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The vice president, permitted to vote only when a tie occurs, has had numerous opportunities to break ties in the seven years he has presided in the senate, but previously had availed himself of the privilege only twice.

"On this vote," the bushy-browed Texan announced crisply today, "the years are 34 and the nays are 34. The chair votes yea, and the amendment is agreed to."

The amendment on which Garner voted cut $115,259 from the CAA funds contained in the $1,138,693,528 independent offices bill. The reduction had been recommended by the senate appropriations committee.

Late in the day the senate completed legislative action on the first appropriation bill of the session — a $57,541,300 deficiency measure.

VOTERS REGISTER TO CAST BALLOTS

ed his office to register and pay their poll tax.

May 5 Deadline. Fulton voters have until May 5 to qualify, he said.

Poll taxes are levied as of January 1 each year, and do not become past due until December 20. A male voter registering for the first time now must pay past-due poll taxes for every year since becoming 21 (if a native voter), but he would not be required to pay 1940 poll taxes until after the forthcoming election.

The retroactive clause applies only to native voters. Persons moving to Georgia become liable for poll taxes only after they have established a legal residence here.

Rules for Women. Female voters are due no poll taxes until they register, and then are not liable for the taxation in the year they register unless they qualify on January 1. However, they are liable for poll taxes thereafter, each year until they become 60 years of age.

While Fulton county has a permanent registration list, Suttles warned qualified voters they must report any change of address to be eligible to vote this year.

To qualify for voting in the primary and general elections this year, Suttles said all past-due poll taxes, including 1939, must be paid on or before May 5.

SOUGHT BY POLICE*Janitor Found Badly Injured on Street.

Atlanta police yesterday were searching for a "cream-colored automobile," wanted in connection with a hit-and-run accident Monday night which critically injured Anderson Taylor, 48, negro janitor at 29 Peachtree place.

Taylor was found lying unconscious on West Peachtree street near Peachtree place by Dr. Tom Goodwin, of the Grady hospital staff, who had him taken to the city hospital. The janitor received a fractured left leg and left arm, numerous cuts and bruises, and a fractured skull.

City officers said the negro apparently was struck down by a motorist. A quantity of broken glass was found near by.

A hint from Jack Spalding: If you are wise, and intend to visit Bogota, learn to speak Spanish. And it might also be well to take along a decompression chamber in your pocket. Then, at least, you'll be safe from the bends.

By JACK SPALDING.

State Correspondent.
BOGOTA, Colombia, Sunday, January 28 (By Mail)—The tourist who wants to see Bogota ought to be able to speak Spanish like a native and should spend the first week in bed getting used to the altitude.

Next to a good pressing club and steam laundries Bogota's greatest needs from a visitor's point of view are decompression chambers and an English-speaking tourist bureau.

Bogota is so high that people who come up from the low country all but have the bends there first few days in town. A walk around the block leaves you panting. Climb a flight of stairs and the natural impulse is to fall flat on the floor, be it in a police station or a hotel, until your heart stops pounding.

Sight-seeing in Bogota is a difficult matter. There are sights to see but nobody seems to know exactly where. Bogota is a city of ancient churches and universities and libraries full of hand-illuminated manuscripts. But try to find them. There are rumors of canvasses by Murrillo. The average Bogotano wants to show you the waterworks, the telephone exchange, the railroad stations, and that's all.

There is a national tourist bureau but it speaks Spanish only. And its idea of service is to give you 10 pounds of catalogues in which Colombia's oil, banana and coffee industries have been broken down into charts and statistics.

Baffled by Bogota, we start poking around in spite of the altitude. It is tough going. Two blocks and we fall into a chair in one of the inevitable holes in the wall where coffee, coffee and more coffee is served night and day. In half an hour we pull ourselves together and make another two blocks. Within an hour we understand why Bogota is a city of young people and why there are so many funerals.

A funeral in Bogota is an awesome tableau in black and silver and almost worth the trip from the States to see. Bogotanos go to the grave unembalmed as soon as possible after death. They travel to the cemetery in horse-drawn hearses that are fanciful, towering constructions of black wood, plate glass and silver ornaments.

Infant Shooting Victim

Geary Guck, two months old, was wounded in the hand when, according to police, his grandfather fired a shotgun at the child, and his grandmother as they alighted from a car Sunday night. Chief of Police E. J. McAlpine, of South St. Paul, a suburb of St. Paul, quoted the grandfather, Michael Sablak, as saying after the shooting, "I would rather have shot myself."

On the four corners of the hearse road, trees of black ostrich feathers dance as they do on the heads of the two black horses. For very swanky funerals, the horses' hooves are silver plated.

The hearse drivers of Bogota are not ambitious young apprentices anxious to open places of their own, but dignified old characters in livery wearing black stovepipe hats. Their work seems to be a semi-sacred profession that is handed down from father to son, not just a job.

At Bogota funeral flowers are treated with more consideration than the mourners. Flowers ride to the cemetery in horse-drawn carriages ahead of the hearse while friends and relatives march along behind.

People who can't afford carriages hang their flowers on the front and sides of street cars and get them to the cemetery that way. To see one of Bogota's red trolleys hanging along, its headlight draped with a funeral wreath, is no uncommon thing. Sad though the occasion may be, it gives the city a Mardi Gras air.

Bogotanos mourn their dead for a long time and wear black for distant relatives. Because Bogotanos have intermarried for centuries and have more cousins than southerners, the universal blackness of the crowds on the sidewalks is understandable. A Bogotano out of mourning is a rare bird indeed.

Walking along the streets of Bogota is as good a way for the tourist to pass his time as any. The citizens of the town stroll along by the thousands, spilling over the narrow sidewalks and wandering down the middle of the road with no regard for wheeled traffic. They congregate in front of newspaper offices to read the latest war bulletins, chalked up on blackboards. They stop between car tracks to talk with friends. In addition to the customary welcoming handshake, they hang over each other's shoulders and swap a few slaps on the back, not a bad idea in a city where fleas outnumber people a million to one.

At night they race along the sidewalks, noses buried in handkerchiefs and scarves. There is a school of thought here that believes cold night air is dangerous and causes paralysis of the face.

All things are on sale along the streets of Bogota. Even Aunt Jeannine grins up from boxes of pancake flour. But because her name is tough on the Latin tongue, it has been changed to Regina.

And if you wish, you can buy a 12-foot plaster statue of your favorite saint, painted all the colors of the rainbow and neatly wrapped in cellophane. The streets of Bogota are a perpetual fair. Saints in cellophane, polo helmets, baskets of orchids, shoe shine boys, army officers in red and green, patient Indians trudging along with heavy loads on their heads, street cars hung with funeral wreaths, priests in long swirling cassocks, and at night illuminated fountains splashing red, green and yellow while people rush home to safe but stale air. The streets of Bogota leave you a little dizzy at first and it's not all the altitude.

Bolo. That may not be a familiar word to you now, but it will be if you ever visit Bogota. Jack Spalding will tell you about the bolos tomorrow. He'll also tell you about the Bogotanos' favorite drink.

"THE OLD RELIABLE"

EVER SO OFTEN A PRUDENT MAN should take stock of the things about him and appraise the worth of those which contribute to his needs and the public welfare.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad modestly presents the following partial evidences of its Partnership with you and your community:

• It has been a partner with the public in the progressive development of the South for nearly 90 years and today serves directly the people of 13 states with 5,000 miles of railroad.

• Handles your freight promptly and efficiently at an average cost to you of less than one cent per ton for each mile hauled.

• Provides pick-up and delivery service on most less-than-carload freight.

• Carries you safely and comfortably at fares as low as 1 1/2 cents per mile, with a further reduction for round trips.

• Gives you air-conditioned trains in all main-line through service.

• Has operated continuously for over 22 years without a single fatality to a passenger in a train accident.

• Built and maintains its own roadway and other facilities and pays large taxes thereon. A great part of its taxes goes to the support of schools and various other functions of government.

• Purchases large quantities of coal, steel and other supplies in the territory it serves—thus helping to keep other industries busy.

• Adds a fine citizenship to its communities by the employment of thousands of men and women whose good wages materially aid the commercial life of its territory.

This railroad recognizes its obligations as a necessary public service institution. It asks no special favors—only that laws and regulations deal with it justly, and place it in equitable relation with its competitors and other business enterprises. Its management and employees sincerely appreciate your patronage, and hope to continue to deserve it by friendly, courteous, economical and efficient service.

Let's look at the L & N's record for the past five years—

Tons of your Freight handled	210,186,933
Number of Passengers carried	18,581,595
Paid in Wages to 24,250 employees	$206,466,599
Paid as interest to Bondholders	$47,506,553
Paid as dividends to Stockholders	$27,495,000
Paid in Taxes of all kinds ($6,568,000 more than dividends)	$34,063,419
Proportion of these taxes going to Schools . . .	$9,843,263
Purchases made for Materials and Supplies	$98,531,694
Spent for Improvements to its Property . . .	$12,800,000
Spent for direct Public Improvements	$544,000

All told, these disbursements total $427,407,265, or an average of $85,500,000 per year.

Surely, this is outstanding performance. These tremendous expenditures stimulate and quicken the social and industrial pulse of the community. They ultimately reach the "butcher, the baker and candlestick-maker"—the merchant, the manufacturer, the banker and all other business.

Such performance assumes added significance in view of the fact that it was achieved during part of the worst depression in history, without government aid, and in the face of constantly growing competition from other transportation agencies which are largely supported and encouraged by public authority.

The Value of Neutrality

Raymond J. Kelly, of Detroit, national commander of the American Legion, expressed the views of a large majority of American citizens when he said, in an interview here, that this country must remain absolutely and steadfastly neutral in the conflicts now raging in Europe.

For, said Commander Kelly, it will be this country's job to build back, as best we can, a civilized, decent world upon the ruins that remain after war is over. It will not only be necessary, he added, for the United States to give money to feed the hungry and homeless of a Europe wrecked by war, it will be the imperative duty of this country to so use her influence in the councils of the treaty makers that a just and permanent peace may eventually be won for the world.

Such a program of service demands a nation powerful and with the trust and confidence of all other nations concerned. It would be impossible to seek international justice if the seeker thereof was already biased toward one side, rendered revengeful and filled with hate because of participation in war.

The people of this nation are not afraid of war itself, but they are afraid of the reactions which come, during and after the fighting, to a people engaged in war. Not the material reactions so much as the miasmic evil which chokes the national sense of fair play and justice, for enemy and for conquered, as well as for allies and victors.

It is true the world of today is in desperate straits, that democracy and human freedom are imperiled, but it is even truer that, when the time comes for a gathering of the nations around the conference table, there will be greater peril unless some calm and steadfast voice, some restraining influence, is able to speak convincingly in the cause of justice for all humanity.

To be that voice is the duty imposed upon the United States. It is the most solemn obligation imposed upon any nation. This country, despite all sympathies with Finland, with the Allies, must keep eternal watch lest her ability to serve the cause of righteous peace shall become impaired.

Good News

The agreement between county and city which will assure early start on construction of the West North Avenue underpass, reached Monday, provided news that could not have been more welcome to every local resident and to tens of thousands of tourists who travel through the city every year.

While the giving of credit for a project so necessary to reduce traffic hazards and casualties is but a minor feature of the situation, the spirit in which the county commissioners, Mayor Hartsfield and other officials concerned, tackled the problem cannot be too highly commended. The underpass will be constructed with the county as direct sponsor, but both local governmental units are sharing the expense beyond that met by the federal government and the two railroads whose tracks now cross the grade crossing which has taken such a toll of lives during past years.

Not only will the building of the underpass remove what has been described as, probably, the most dangerous grade crossing in the southeast, but the undertaking will provide jobs for the next 18 months or two years to some 150 to 200 local workmen, as well as involving the spending, with local business firms, of more than $200,000 for materials.

The federal government has allotted $485,000 out of its grade crossing elimination funds for this job. The city has provided $57,500 toward the cost of securing rights-of-way and the county will contribute a similar sum. These, together with contributions made by the two railroads of $10,000 each, make a total of $135,000 for these preliminary expenses. If further funds are required, city and county have agreed to share the cost on a 50-50 basis.

Owing to circumstances beyond control of either government, the start on the underpass has been too long delayed. Of course, it is impossible to do such a piece of work overnight, nor is it possible to complete all the preliminaries, including securing rights-of-way, making necessary adjustments in water, sewerage, utility services, etc., in a single day.

Nevertheless, with due consideration for the many details to be worked out, the one thought now should be to get the job started as promptly as possible and to push it to completion without any unnecessary delay. For, every day that automobile traffic is compelled to cross the 42 rails which bear the heavy railroad movements at this point is one more period of hazard for every motorist who has to cross those tracks.

A Library That Serves.

That the Carnegie Library of Atlanta is a vital, living influence in the city is amply shown by the report of Miss Fanny D. Hinton, librarian, submitted this week to Mayor Hartsfield.

It is shown in that report that, during 1939, 1,354,646 persons made use of the service available at the library. This number covers a wide range in type of service, including not only those who borrowed volumes from the library shelves, but those who sought its aid in research work, who were contacted through the periodical department, who made use of its facilities for technological study and a multitude of others.

Requests for information were received from 35,369 persons, more than 12,000 of these being by telephone. The very efficiency of the library and its staff results in a rapid increase in demands for this kind of service. More and more people are learning, daily, that when some puzzling piece of information is needed, the most reliable source at which to seek is the Carnegie Library.

That the library has grown with the city since it was opened in 1899 to serve a community of only 89,000 people, is evident to all who pay even cursory attention to its work. That it is seriously handicapped by insufficient personnel and by paucity of funds, is known to all familiar with the institution.

The increasing number of branch libraries, while each serves a magnificent purpose to its own community, has placed added burden upon the library personnel and finances and, if it is to keep pace with the city's growth, it is imperative larger sums be appropriated for its maintenance and growth.

It is reported, incidentally, that an early start is now expected on another branch library, a $20,000 structure, for the Little Five Points area. Which is highly gratifying, but will, inevitably, add to the labor and expense of the Carnegie Library personnel.

A public library is, in large sense, the soul of a city. From it radiates a culture and knowledge that inspires a better city, a better community in which to live.

No money spent by any city is better spent than the money used to keep its public library a growing, vital factor in the service of its citizens.

Republican Move

The Democratic National Committee has chosen Chicago as the site for the 1940 party convention. The date for that important gathering has been left to Chairman James Farley to decide. He will, undoubtedly, try to avoid setting that date until the Republicans have announced the date and place for their convention.

Undoubtedly, the party which holds its national convention following that of its rival will, this election year, gain an advantage. It is quite possible that the type of personalities chosen as candidates by the other side will have more or less to do with the men nominated to oppose them in the national tournament of ballots.

It is too early, as yet, for either side to predict who will be its standard-bearers. There are too many active, and potentially active, candidates already listed, to say nothing of the dark horses which may emerge into the spotlight between now and convention time.

There is, too, that overshadowing question of whether or not President Roosevelt intends, or can be persuaded, to accept a third-term nomination. There is, even, the possibility of an issue over whether or not he can be dissuaded from the candidacy.

Every indication is that, given a reasonably strong candidate, the Democrats will win. On the Republican side there seems to be a great dearth of leadership timber. At the best, their cause would be but a forlorn hope.

But Jim Farley will overlook no angle which might make Democratic victory even more certain. Wise in the ways of party politics, he will wait patiently until the Republicans have irrevocably committed themselves to a convention date. When this is done, the Democrats will plan their convention for a later date, with the advantage of knowing, before they choose their candidate, what his opposition will be.

The next move in the political chess game is up to the Republicans, and Jim Farley is, just the man to wait in non-committal patience, no matter how long the G. O. P. tries to sit him out.

Browder, of false passport fame, is a candidate for Congress in New York. Speculation is rife as to whose face Earl will use this time on the fences.

Hundreds of feet under the ground, miners in Idaho come across the fossilized remains of an elephant. Always, somehow, the G. O. P. seems to rise again.

Editorial of the Day

DO WE NEED AN ANTILYNCH LAW?
(From Collier's.)

It comes out that lynching in the United States during the year 1939 hit an all-time low—three for the whole nation, with one of the victims a white man.

The news makes us wonder whether we need the antilynch legislation that bobs up in almost every session of congress, causes various lawmakers to fight the Civil War all over again with their mouths, and causes fairly close to passing but has never passed yet.

Without such a law, lynching has been cut down in this country from a peak of 231 mob murders in 1892 to the three reported last year. The thing has been accomplished by education of public opinion. Press, educators, clergy—all the forces of civic decency—have crusaded against this barbaric custom for 60 years.

Lynching seems to be definitely on the run in this country, though, of course, the total may swing above three this year or next or later.

But until and unless lynchings threaten to go a long way toward that 1892 peak of 231, we'd say it would be wise to keep up the nonpolitical crusading and sidetrack the proposed legislation. A law decreeing some reform should be the last recourse. It's far better to bring about a reform by bringing public opinion around to favoring it—and civic decency, in the matter of lynching as in all others, is better generated voluntarily inside any community than imposed from outside.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

DRIVING HARD BARGAIN WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—As the just-announced powder purchase indicates, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. is driving an extremely hard bargain with the English and French. Few members of the administration are more friendly to the Allied cause, but he is determined to prevent any repetition of the tremendous disorganization which followed the last war.

This disorganization had a simple cause: In their hurry to fill immensely profitable war orders, American manufacturers expanded their plant beyond all reason in the period 1914-1919. When the war ended, the manufacturers' markets violently contracted. Meanwhile the new plant remained, and the over-capitalized companies found themselves faced with dividend, interest, depreciation and tax payments which they could ill afford to meet.

Now our manufacturers, as well as Morgenthau, have learned their lesson. He is energetically supporting them in their resolve to be paid fully, and in advance, for any plant expansion undertaken as the result of war orders. He is also doing his best, both by negotiations with the manufacturers and by guiding the French and British buyers, to prevent distortion of the economy caused by plant expansions, even when paid for in cash on the barrel-head. His objective is to channel war-buying in such a way that when the war ends the American economy can return as nearly as possible to the status quo ante.

HIKING THE BILLS Naturally this policy bears down cruelly on the British and French. They are engaged in a death struggle in which they rightly believe this country has an important interest. They are precluded from obtaining credit here.

Meanwhile, they are forced to pay nearly double the value of all the goods they buy. Another powder deal, similar to the one just announced, will serve as an example. A certain American company is able to supply the Allies with 3,600,000 pounds of explosive powder, which they directly need, within the next twelve months, the company is asking 50 cents a pound for the powder. This price, slightly above the recent market, would make the actual bill $1,800,000. But in addition, $900,000 is demanded for needed plant expansion, and $180,000 for taxes and depreciation on the new plant. Thus the total cost of the powder to the Allies will be over $1,000,000 more than it is worth.

Under the circumstances, it is hardly surprising that English officials have sometimes wistfully mentioned the question of credit to Morgenthau. The question has been raised in three ways. First it has been desired to spread payments for new plant over two or more years, instead of following the cash on the barrel-head system. Second, both the English and French have wished to borrow government money against their American stocks and bonds—which was specifically found to be permissible under the Johnson act in a ruling by Attorney General Francis Murphy during the preliminary war crisis last April. And third, there have been suggestions that the assets of England and France may be exhausted, making extensions of credit absolutely necessary as the war continues.

SIMPLE SYSTEM These mentions of credit, however, caused Morgenthau to freeze up in a very glacial way. On one occasion, he asked a young Allied official "not to bring up subject again, in the interest of both our countries." Consequently, the subject has been dropped.

On the whole, considering the novelty and difficulty of the job to be done and the conflicts it involves, the relations between the Anglo-French purchasing mission and Morgenthau's government co-ordinating committee have been surprisingly easy. The system is fairly simple.

The purchasing mission has headquarters in New York, whence inquiries for goods are sent to the records of all inquiries are transmitted to the treasury, and before deals reach the final stage the government co-ordinating committee sits in.

Besides the treasury, the war and navy departments are represented on the government co-ordinating committee. The war department was, of course, peevisish when Morgenthau was named chairman by the President. But the fact that most of the tremendous problems to be tackled by the committee are essentially economic in import amply explains the President's action, which is also justified, thus far, by Morgenthau's handling of the work.

Another Route.

On one thing the old mind is made up. I'm not going to drive out Piedmont road again, until after some other, bolder soul has first tried the route and reported on experiences.

The last time I maneuvered the family bus around and through and over and down into the canyons and pitfalls and abysses which pass for paving on that thoroughfare. I voiced many curses and one vow. The curses won't do for publication here. We still have regard for the sensitive ears of many of our readers.

The vow, however, was that I wouldn't drive over Piedmont road again, until it is either repaved or decently repaired, or, better yet, until the way I had to go around to reach the daughter's home on Powers' Ferry road.

That was before the severe cold, the snow and the ice. So, knowing what such weather would do to Atlanta street paving, the vow is hereby renewed and reinforced.

There may be other highways in Atlanta and in Fulton county which are as bad, in this respect, as Piedmont road. That is, they are bad, in the sense that they are not paved. Certainly, any so-called paved highway would find it almost impossible to be worse.

You Can't Dodge 'Em.

The holes in the paving are so numerous you can't dodge 'em. Drive around one and you hit three more.

Already, although I have not been on Piedmont road, the results of the severe weather are evidenced on many of the streets I do cover, regularly. There is, for instance, a hole on Ponce de Leon, just beyond Fairview—And other places.

Wonder why it is that weather a little more than normally severe always results in holes in the local paving? Surely it doesn't have that effect on the paving in other cities. In the north, for instance, where ice and snow and sub-zero temperatures are common. Can it be that the quality of the paving used here is poorer than in other places? Or don't our engineers and workers know how to lay the stuff, properly and permanently?

Costly To Car Owners.

Wouldn't be at all surprised if the holes in our streets and the roughness don't add $25 a year, on an average, to the value depreciation of every car owned in Atlanta. It must be tough on every car that has to use such streets as Piedmont road, for instance, every day of the month.

The shaking up that cars get on such thoroughfares must turn many a good car into a rattletrap long before its time.

And the pity of it is that there is, in so far as I know, no possession so severely taxed as an automobile, and the fuel needed to operate it.

If it could only be guaranteed against diversion to some other purpose, it would probably pay every car owner in the city to contribute $10 or $15 a year for a fund to provide him with the lower depreciation of his car. To say nothing of fewer repair bills.

I think it is on Rock Springs road. About three weeks ago, coming home at, say 11 p. m., our family car was well loaded. Five passengers, including the driver, me. I was traveling at 25 miles an hour. Or, possibly, 26 miles.

Suddenly, right in the headlights, a great canyon in the paving loomed before me. It seemed almost bottomless. A foot or more wide and extending more than a width across the street. Far too wide to avoid.

The only thing to do was hit it and pray. I did. Fearful car. But prayer must have been effective. For we didn't turn over. Nothing about the car broke and, surprisingly, there was no ill effect, beyond the shock to passengers and the deplorable effect on temperaments. And language.

Have been thinking, ever since, there should be a checkup on the car. But you know how it is, trying to find time to leave it with the service folks, and to remember. To say nothing of paying the bill, afterwards.

But if that jarring when the front wheels hit that hole didn't do something detrimental to axles, springs, etc., then the manufacture of this car of mine deserves a whole hothouse full of orchids.

Surely, there could be few severer tests for a stock car than a 25-mile-an-hour drive out Piedmont road.

Couldn't the Chamber of Commerce suggest the idea to the Automobile Manufacturers' Association? Let's turn everything we can into a civic asset. Even the gulleys and abysses of our thoroughfares.

There is a mild treasure-hunting epidemic in Santa Barbara, Calif., following the wide publicity given an unsuccessful attempt to find a cache of gold believed buried in the Hollywood bowl.

Legends of a hoard left by Joaquin Murietta, famed early-day bandit, have been revived as well as several other treasure stories descending from gold-rush days. One group of men is digging in the Santa Ynez mountains for a Wells-Fargo Express box, and another is seeking a pirate chest re-

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Just What NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The news from I Mean.

Miami informs us that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor has been meeting there. This comes coincidentally with J. Edgar Hoover's recent announcement that the criminal scum of the country was assembling there again for its winter social and professional season.

Does this mean that I intend to identify some members of the American Federation of Labor with criminal scum?

But, yes. What else could I mean? Let there be any doubt about it, perhaps I should say in so many words that some criminal scum of the country hold high office in the American Federation of Labor and many subsidiary offices, and point out that, although the executive council in the current session has had much to say about the faults of the national government and other matters, it has thus far taken no notice of the activities of criminal scum in its own affairs. If the American Federation of Labor had any objections to criminal scum it would have taken occasion a long time ago, and certainly could have found no more effective occasion than the present meeting, to issue some expression against criminal scum in the labor movement.

Resounding Silence. This would require no revision of the constitution, but it would require a drastic revision of the federation's policy and morals.

The constitution does not forbid resolutions on any topic, but the policy and morality do, and thus the executive council's silence on one subject is much more resounding and expressive of the federation's character than all of the official utterances which have come forth.

Although no news has come through regarding any activity of Mr. George Scalse, the distinguished Brooklyn mackerel who is president of one of the big international unions of the federation, it may be assumed that he has been giving the labor movement, as represented by the A. F. of L., the benefit of his wisdom and character.

For it was announced in Chicago, just after Mr. Scalse received a vote of confidence from his own executive group, that he was boarding a plane at once to bear him to Miami. There were snows and cold winds in New York at the time, and it was not necessary for Mr. Scalse to return home.

Thousands

He has thousands of women who toil on their knees in the office buildings at night, scouring floors and spittoons; thousands of Scandinavian window washers who dangle on straps in the high winds on tall buildings; thousands of elevator men and porters all over the city, including the means to daily in the land of the criminal scum, and the Chicago vote of confidence was intended to confirm his right to their contributions.

And actively on the job in New York to enforce the collections and allot, or sell, the jobs he has and the staff, including, as we shall see, some of the criminal scum of the American Federation of Labor.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Hoover did not elaborate on his mention of the scum, for it would be interesting to read a social directory of Miami and Miami Beach, giving the names and addresses and police and criminal records of the colony which has transformed the community into the winter headquarters of the most illustrious and vicious racketeers out of prison. Their press agency regularly advertise the dives which are operated by members of this colony, but never are the scum identified plainly as scum, being commonly referred to as sportsmen.

Hoover

Mr. Hoover, had he cared to, might have let the house-holders and other visitors know who their neighbors were, including not only their street numbers but the numbers of their records in the files of the F. B. I.

The Miamians are strangely sluggish in this phase of their publicity, by contrast with other resorts which always get up lists of their noted sojourners with a paragraph or more on the background of each.

Of course, it is important to know how the executive council of the American Federation of Labor stands on the New Deal, the Labor Relations Board, industry and recovery, and perhaps it is unnecessary to make any statement of policy on the subject of criminal scum. The roster of union officials in and under the A. F. of L. provides the answer. The A. F. of L. welcomes and defends some criminal scum.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

WHO'S PAYING FOR IT? The average voter will be excused if, in all the sudden clamor about a presidential preferential primary in Georgia, he hears faintly, yet distinctly, the sound of at least one or two axes being well ground.

He also will be on firm ground if he asks who is footing the bill?

There has been time bought for radio. There was a talk yesterday. There is another one scheduled for today.

Time on the air is not to be paid for with Confederate money nor with hay. It is paid for with money. And lots of money.

A primary may be quite the thing to have. But who is spending all this money to get one? And why?

It cannot be those spending the money have merely a passionate desire for a preferential primary. Here, all of a sudden, there is a tremendous do-about democracy and about the necessity for the democratic process.

That's great. We all are for democracy. But isn't that the sound of an axe being ground? Or is it merely the gears of democracy being meshed?

If it is an axe, then whose axe is it? All this the average voter may well want to know as the welkin rings, loud and vigorously, with radio speeches, expensive pamphlets and so on.

If as many as two candidates enter a primary then we ought to have one. But all this sudden tumult is a bit puzzling. Who is paying the money and if so is it to grind a political axe? Or is it just a sudden excess of brotherly love, and if it is that, the question still is—who is paying for it?

As one of the innocent bystanders, I'd like to know.

GEORGIA DEMANDS Yesterday there came in the mail an expensive pamphlet entitled "Georgia Demand a Presidential Preferential Primary."

It was published, so it said, "By Georgia Democrats in the Interest of the People of Georgia."

I looked twice. It said the people, not the Pee-pul. It is a costly book. It is in three colors and a three-color job is very expensive. In the inside pages are half-tone cuts of certain leading political figures.

Senator Walter F. George is the first one pictured. Next comes Vice President Garner, who is willing to enter a Georgia primary if Georgia has one.

Next comes the picture of Mr. Eugene Talmadge. A couple of pages over Mr. Edgar Dunlap's cherubic smile and handsome face appears in a smaller sized cut illustrating his speech entitled "It's Up to You to Make Me."

Turning over one discovers Mr. Thomas W. Hardwick's picture illustrating a letter to Mr. James L. Gillis, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee. The letter demands a primary. There are statements from various other persons, all unillustrated. It is an excellent pamphlet. It declares there is, in Georgia, a "political nigger in the woodpile."

Maybe there are two. It would be interesting to know who is paying the bill for the three-color pamphlet.

And why? And in whose interest? It isn't being done just for the doing. It's being done by some group for some other group.

May one ask just an innocent question? Who is paying for all this radio time, the expensive booklet in three colors? And in whose cause is the money being spent?

ANTI-RIVERS Most of the attack is based on the anti-Rivers Public sentiment decidedly is against him. No one would seek to deny that.

But anyone who seeks to analyze the current campaign, furious and a bit hysterical, to obtain a preferential primary, must see at once that it seizes on the opposition to Rivers as a dummy which may be knocked down to obtain the objective.

Perhaps the objective is right. Perhaps we do need a primary. But we also need an explanation of who is behind the hysterical effort to get one—and for whom are they seeking to land the delegates?

It also is quite apparent, and frankly stated by some, they do not want Governor Rivers to head the committee because he "will deliver the delegation to President Roosevelt."

Is that "the nigger in the woodpile?" Or isn't it? Isn't it also unfair to refuse to name the delegation—if there is an unscrupulous one—to suggest they could be delivered like a sack of potatoes? There will be some honorable Georgians on either committee, instructed or not instructed. To suggest they would be dominated is hardly fair or honest.

So, from one not especially interested in the question—and from others who merely look on—comes the query:

Who is paying for it? And why are they willing to spend the money for radio speeches, pamphlets in three colors, and for other expenses?

Who are they and

F. D. R. APPROVES NAVAL MEASURE, VINSON DECLARES

Georgian Pays Call to White House; His Committee To Act on $654,902,270 Bill Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee, asserted after a White House call today that President Roosevelt had approved his bill for a $654,902,270 two-year naval construction program.

Vinson, who brought along a copy of the measure to show Mr. Roosevelt, said his committee would act on it Thursday.

Originally, the bill called for a much larger program, extending over five years. In its present form, it would authorize the building of an additional 167,000 tons of fighting ships, 75,000 tons of auxiliary vessels and 1,011 airplanes.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Yaltah Menuhin Stix, 18, sister of Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, was granted a divorce today from William Stix, young Washington, D. C., attorney.

They were married June 7, 1938, in New York, and separated six months later. The complaint stated Stix was out of her company constantly.

Lawyer Twists the Table, But Is Client Helped?—No!

A lawyer's superstition about where he would sit at a courtroom counsel table failed to bring him luck yesterday in the second criminal division of Fulton superior court.

Attorney Roland Neeson, who was representing Thomas Brooks, 37, charged with false swearing in connection with the purchase of a piece of property, arrived in court early. He took his seat on the side of the table nearest the jury box—the place usually occupied by the solicitor.

When Assistant Solicitor Quincy Arnold arrived, he objected to Neeson's sitting in his chair and protested to Judge A. L. Etheridge.

The judge said he did not want to become involved, and asked Neeson and Arnold to "settle it among yourselves—the court is out of it."

Neeson argued that every time he sat on the other side of the table he lost his case. They compromised by turning the table endwise to the jury box so that both were satisfied.

"Now I am going to change my luck," Neeson said.

But he didn't. The judge gave Neeson's client a sentence of from three to five years, after the man was found guilty by the jury.

mary, five of the 12 house and senate members have gone on record for calling a primary and seven have remained silent. Senator Russell, although in favor of a primary or convention method of selecting delegates, has asked for an unrestricted delegation.

Governor Rivers, who came to Washington to attend yesterday's session of the Democratic national committee, of which he is the Georgia representative, will remain over tomorrow to testify before the senate judiciary committee against the pending anti-lynching bill. He is doing so at the request of Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, one of the judiciary committee members and the leader of the fight against the bill. Gillis was planning to return to Atlanta by a late train tonight.

Both the Governor and Mr. Gillis called on Secretary Hull after an earlier visit to the White House, where they were received by President Roosevelt along with other national and state Democratic committeemen and committeewomen.

Plans had called for a conference today with Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Roads Bureau, over Georgia highway funds, but the meeting had to be postponed because of the illness of Mr. MacDonald.

New Move.

Senator Donahy, Democrat, Ohio, made a new move in the complex Democratic situation in Ohio. He proposed that the Democratic state central committee be called together to adopt a program.

Donahy was originally put forward as a favorite son candidate by Ohio political leaders favorable to a third term, with an understanding that he would release the delegation to President Roosevelt at the proper time. More recently it has been reported that Charles Sawyer, Ohio national committeeman, would seek that role. Donahy did not disclose whether he would oppose Sawyer in the Ohio preferential primary.

Sawyer, meanwhile, told reporters that in his opinion Mr. Roosevelt could carry Ohio.

Believed Dominant.

"I think Roosevelt sentiment is clearly dominant," he said, "but certainly I wouldn't say the Republicans would win if the Democrats chose any other candidate. We couldn't win with just anybody, however."

At the same time, Mrs. Lucretia Grady, California committeewoman, said a recent tour of many southern and western states revealed that third-term sentiment was "overwhelming."

National Chairman James A. Farley, asserting that "everything is under control more or less," told reporters he planned a two-week vacation in Florida. After selecting Chicago as the 1940 convention city, the national committee authorized Farley to fix the date, which he plans to do after the Republicans set the time of their convention at a meeting scheduled for February 16. Representative Martin, Massachusetts, the Republican floor leader, expressed the opinion today that the Republican convention would be held in June.

Broiled "bramburghers" were the entree on the menu, and were prepared with the following ingredients: Egg, minced onion, milk, bran, ground beef, bacon and parsley. After cooking the "bramburghers," Mrs. Shockley made gravy with a milk base.

Complementary dishes to be served with the bramburghers included vegetable fritters, an easy dish to prepare with any vegetable. The cup of cooked vegetables was fried in eggs, milk, lemon juice, flour, shortening and baking powder.

The menu, valuable because of its vitamin content and its reasonable price, was completed with the preparation of a pineapple and sweet potato salad and a pastry mix to be used in any pies and tarts.

Diced sweet potatoes, marshmallows, sliced pineapple, seedless white grapes, lettuce, and salad dressing were arranged by Mrs. Shockley. They may be served at a buffet luncheon or at table as a salad dessert for dinner.

The pastry was mixed in a covered container, and it was pointed out, may be stored on a pantry shelf until needed, but must not be kept in an icebox. It will keep sweet and fresh at room temperature. The pastry was made of sifted flour, shortening, and salt.

As a final party suggestion she prepared a club sandwich loaf using sliced white bread, softened butter, lettuce, canned white tuna, bacon, tomatoes and mayonnaise. The completed loaf was garnished with celery, olives and radishes.

It's the Early Bird that gets the Fun

The model illustrated is the Buick Super model 51 four-door touring sedan $1100 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional.*

ONE of these days the itch is going to hit you to get out and get in on the fun a Buick can be in the springtime.

You're going to feel an irrepressible yearning to touch off that husky, sweet-singing Dynaflex power plant and swing out in gentle coil-spring comfort to take in the fresh spring landscape.

Maybe, like others we know of, you've even got the model picked out, and are just "waiting a few weeks" to do something definite about it.

But may we emphasize, in purely friendly interest, that a lot of other people probably have the same idea.

And that when they start buying in droves—as they do every year about the time of March—even Buick's big factory has trouble keeping up with them.

Help Promote Safety—Dim Your Lights When Passing

Of course, we're doing all we can to be ready for everyone.

But you can get only so many cars in a warehouse.

And a full warehouse can empty awfully fast.

And what with everybody wanting Buicks this season, we can't say how long we can promise the delivery we can give now.

So why not play the early bird this year? Why not get the jump on your neighbor and be driving your Buick while he's still talking about getting his?

You've nothing to lose, a lot of fun to gain—and you'll find the address of your Buick dealer in the phone book.

They Study Means of Improving Local Government

'CAROLINA PAYOFF' LAUDED BY WAGER

cal roads, eliminated hundreds of county road commissioners, engineers, and other functionaries who served the road setup, and at the same time removed all county property taxes for road support.

"We took the burden of road support from counties and put it where it should be, upon the auto owner who uses the roads," Dr. Wager declared.

Shortly after, to work these roads, the county took over every state prisoner serving a sentence of 30 days or more, built camps to house them and put them out on the highways to keep them in repair.

Jointly with this, the state organized a sort of double-entry bookkeeping system by which the highway and prison departments functioned together. The prison setup was in charge of housing, clothing and feeding prisoners. The highway organization paid $1 per day per man for their labor.

Aged, Sick Aided.

"It was a sort of concealed diversion," Dr. Wager admitted, "but it enabled us to raise enough from the labor of able convicts support the aged, the sick and women prisoners who could not work."

Two years later the state made another move, taking over the financial operation of the schools. Under this setup the state pays the salaries of teachers and all other personnel, pays for supplies, equipment and transportation.

At the same time property taxes for the support of school districts were wiped out.

The state guaranteed an eight months' term, but the local government was allowed the privilege of voting property taxes to support another month, if it so wished, or for the payment of supplementary salaries to teachers. Forty-nine counties levied such taxes. The others didn't.

Local Expense.

The local governments only were required to bear the expense of capital outlay, such as new buildings or building additions, and the expenses of debt service. Cost to the state to maintain the school system for 1940 will be roughly $26,000,000, or 69 cents out of every tax dollar in the general fund. This fund holds all except gas tax revenues, and includes a 3 per cent sales tax which raises $1,000,000 a month.

All school supplies under the new setup are bought through the state purchasing department, which effects a saving because great quantities are contracted for at low prices. School superintendents requisition manufacturers and jobbers for their needs under state contract prices.

Under the setup, North Carolina transports more school children per year in school buses than any other state, at a cost $10 less per year per child than the next most economical state.

Economizing by co-ordinating functions under the state has not been North Carolina's only effort to free herself of the debt burden, Dr. Wager explained.

"In the 1920's," he said, "local government in North Carolina spent so much money it found itself going into the depression with a total bonded debt of $382,000,000 with property values and incomes shrinking, tax delinquency on the increase, and debt service payments impossible to meet."

Commission Set Up.

"With the credit of the state in serious danger of being impaired, North Carolina set up a local government commission, vesting in it the power to control political subdivisions in debt-making, and with the power to assist them in refinancing their current debts."

"This commission worked out plans of refinancing on basis of ability to pay, and today, out of 200 local governments, county, city, and municipality, which had their backs to the wall, only 15 or 20 are still in bad shape. Forty counties, 74 cities and towns, and 73 school districts have been helped to refinance their debts."

"Bonds now are sold only through the commission, at the lowest rates of interest possible to obtain."

"With all the centralization," Dr. Wager added, "state government has not suffered. New taxes, one of them a 3 per cent sales tax, are necessary, and careful budgeting was necessary. But expansion has been steady, improvement of services and institutions has continued, and the state's own bonded debt has been reduced."

Other speakers on the opening program of the three-day institute in conjunction with the National Municipal League were Howard P. Jones, of New York, secretary of the league, and Raymond Uhl, acting director of the bureau of public administration, University of Virginia.

Professor Uhl described the efficient operation of the county manager plan in three Virginia counties, and Dr. Jones talked on "Recent Trends in Expenditure Control."

Urging a civil service system for municipal government, Dr. Jones declared that the benefits of such a system would be twofold—in obtaining better men for the jobs, and in abolishing the creation of pure "patronage" jobs.

"Salaries in small, little-noticed jobs are apt to pyramid under the old system," Dr. Jones said. "For few raises over a period of years, to $1,800, perhaps. The new employee comes in at $1,800 and goes on from there to $2,200, say, for a job worth $900.

"Under a civil service system the value of the job would be set at $900 to $1,200, say, and there the salary would stay."

Mayor Hartsfield was the principal speaker at an evening session last night, discussing "The Engineer and Politics."

His speech was followed by a round-table session of engineers. Participating were J. A. Cooper, chairman of the Georgia section, American Society of Civil Engineers; R. S. King, Georgia Tech; M. F. Merle, chairman Georgia section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers; E. W. O'Brien, vice president of W. R. C. Smith Publishing Company; J. O'D. Shepherd, chairman Georgia section, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and T. T. Tucker, chairman of the Georgia section of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers.

Lewisohn Weds in Spite of Woman Who Says She's 'Wife, Muse, Soul'

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ludwig Lewisohn, Jewish author, and Miss Edna Manley were married today after the ceremony had been halted temporarily by a woman who asserted she was his "wife, his muse, his soul" and mother of his six-year-old son.

Bernard Sandler, New York attorney representing Miss Thelma Spear, who he said was Lewisohn's common-law wife, declared:

"I am going to consult with my client about legal action in Baltimore."

After the five-minute ceremony, performed by Dr. Edward L. Israel at Har Sinai temple center, Lewisohn and Miss Manley said they planned to continue tonight a lecture tour that would take them to New York.

"We are very happy," said the bride, an attractive brunette and former Rochester, N. Y., newspaperwoman. "I am sure that everything will turn out all right."

They were married despite the tearful pleas of blond Miss Spear, who said she had been Lewisohn's common-law wife for 16 years, and a last-minute telephone call from the blue-eyed blond young lad she said was the author's son.

"I never want to see my father again," Jimmy told Dr. Israel over the telephone from the hotel where he and his mother went after confronting Lewisohn and his bride-to-be in the temple.

Miss Spear, her son and her attorney arrived at the temple a few moments before the scheduled hour of the wedding.

"I have been his wife, his muse and his soul," said Miss Spear. "This wedding must not take place. I am willing to give him his freedom, though I love him with all my heart. But first he must marry me. Then I promise to let him go to Reno for a divorce."

Sandler asserted bigamy proceedings would be instituted against Lewisohn if he married Miss Manley.

"Who's Who" (1938-1939) lists Thelma Bowman Spear as Lewisohn's second wife and James Elias Bowman as their son. Lewisohn's first wife was Mary Arnold Crocker, who wrote under the name of Bosworth Crocker.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
LECTURE IS GIVEN

Dr. John M. Tutt Declares Practice Finds Full Sanction in the Bible.

Christian Science finds full sanction in the Bible, Dr. John M. Tutt, C. S. B., of Kansas City, Mo., affirmed in a lecture on Christian Science entitled, "Christian Science: Newness of Life," delivered last night under auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Atlanta, in the church edifice. Dr. Tutt is a member of the board of lecture-ship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The lecturer was introduced by Mrs. Jeannette Powell, second reader.

"Christ Jesus, in Gethsemane, told His disciples to wait and watch, and he went a little farther and fell on his face, and prayed," according to the gospel narrative, Dr. Tutt brought out. "Jesus indeed went a little farther. He was charting unknown ground. His task was to abolish death, scientifically, not by succumbing to death, but by preventing it, knowing its unreality. 'No one had ever gone that far, no one had yet proved scientifically the way of life through Christ. But Jesus did it, hence the great importance of the resurrection to humanity, letting in the understanding of the unending creation of man as God's creation,' he said. 'If you and I are to know this 'power of an endless life,' we must display that spirit embodied in Christ Jesus' demonstration. We must fall on our face and pray. We must go further in faith, in vision, in determination, in devotion, in unselfishness. We must go a little further into the unknown, overcoming the wilderness of error's deceptions. Error drove Jesus into the wilderness, but He conquered it. And so must we work out our own salvation. This, my friends, it is to pray."

DROP BRIBE CHARGE,
BURNS ASKS COURT

Failure To Get New Trial Claimed; Plea Taken Under Advisement.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of Fulton superior court, took under advisement yesterday an application for dismissal of bribery charges against Pee Wee Burns, reputed former liquor and lottery racketeer.

Dismissal is asked on the grounds that the state has failed to comply with a demand for trial which Burns filed in April, 1938, immediately after his indictment. Although tried and convicted on charges of bribing law enforcement officers in May, 1938, Burns won a new trial in August, 1939, from Judge Paul S. Etheridge.

This new trial has not been held, and attorneys for Burns contend that since it was not held during the July-August or October-November terms of court, the indictment must be nolle prossed.

Under demands for trial, the law provides that the defendant must be tried at that particular term of court, or the next. Otherwise, the indictment must be quashed.

The state has taken the position that the original demand has been complied with, and the granting of a new trial does not renew the demand for trial.

CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

✓ For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. VapoRub's spoolite-vapor action relieves congestion of upper air passages—eases soreness of chest and back muscles—helps the youngster relax into healing sleep.

✓ For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue to relieve the irritation. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

✓ For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested treatments.

FOWLER'S TRIAL ON BRIBE CHARGE ENDS IN MISTRIAL

No Verdict After All-Day Deliberation; East Point Councilmen Testify They Were Approached.

A mistrial was declared last night in the case of T. W. Fowler, former Fulton county tax investigator under indictment on a bribery charge, when a jury failed to return a verdict after nine hours' deliberation.

The mistrial order will be signed early this morning, Judge Hugh M. Dorsey said last night.

The jurors left the court room after a two-day trial yesterday shortly after noon.

Quit at 11 O'clock. When they were unable to agree after several hours of deliberation, Judge Dorsey ordered the jury discharged if a decision had not been reached by 11 o'clock last night.

In view of the jury's actions, the solicitor general's office may seek a new trial or ask the judge to not pros the case, Dorsey said. Previously the application had been denied.

Councilmen Testify. The councilmen, E. A. Sims, R. E. Carmichael and Simpson Kidd Jr., were principal state witnesses. They testified Fowler offered them "certain valuable considerations" for their support of the application. The consideration in each instance was different, they said.

The jury came back once for a rehearing during its long deliberation. They called Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, who heard the case, at 4:30 o'clock and asked him to define bribery and if the charge was a felony or misdemeanor.

When he replied it was a misdemeanor, he was asked if the jury could recommend a sentence.

Two Operas Will Be Presented By San Carlo Company Today

The Matinee This Afternoon Will Be "Madame Butterfly," Featuring Hizi Koyke, Soprano; Tonight's Performance Is "Carmen" With Coe Glade Singing the Role.

Two operas will be presented by the San Carlo Opera Company today. This afternoon they will present "Madame Butterfly" and tonight "Carmen." The cast and the story of the two operas briefly told appear below.

CARMEN
Carmen, a cigarette girl and a gypsy, Coe Glade, mezzo-soprano.
Don Jose, a brigadier, Arnold Lindt, tenor.
Escamillo, a toreador, Mario Valle, baritone.
Micaela, a peasant girl, Leola Turner, soprano.
Zuniga, a captain, Harold Kravitt, bass.
Dancaire, gypsy smuggler, Francesco Curci, tenor.
Remendado, gypsy smuggler, Richard Wentworth, baritone.
Mercedito, baritone friend of Carmen, Charlotte Bruno, soprano.
Trasquila, gypsy friend of Carmen, Myra Manning, soprano.

Carmen Fickle Gypsy.
Carmen, the heroine, is a Spanish gypsy, fickle and wayward, endowed with all the wild graces of her nation. She tries to charm Don Jose, who is betrothed to sweet and lovely Micaela. Carmen has become involved in a fight and wounded one of her companions in the cigarette factory. Don Jose is to take her to prison, but through her flirtatious wiles she gets him to let her off, and he promises to meet her at Pastia's inn in the evening.

Act II shows them together at the inn where they dance the seguidilla. Don Jose is so infatuated with Carmen's charms that he deserts the army and joins a gypsy band with her. Carmen soon tires of him and transfers her affections to Escamillo, a bull-fighter. Micaela finds Don Jose with the gypsies and tells him his dying mother asks for him incessantly. He finally consents to go with her.

The last act is in Madrid. There is to be a bull-fight, and Escamillo, its hero, has invited every one to be present. Don Jose appears, trying for the last time to regain Carmen's love. She frankly tells him her love belongs to Escamillo. In a wild fury Don Jose stabs her just as the trumpets announce Escamillo's victory in the arena.

if they found him guilty. The judge replied, "No, your job is to find him guilty or not guilty." Fowler was the only defense witness.

In a brief statement, the former tax investigator denied having tried to bribe anyone. He charged "dirty politics" was the cause of his difficulties.

REVIEWER PRAISES 'AIDA' PERFORMANCE

Ballet Called Superb; Characters Are Praised for Fine Voices.

B. MOZELE HORTON YOUNG.
"Aida," Verdi's all-time favorite opera, took on new glamour last night when it was given a performance by the San Carlo Opera Company that would hold its ground with any performance of the same opera by any company, and far exceeded many I have seen.

I have never seen "Aida" staged so beautifully. The scenery was beautiful, the lighting very effective, and the costumes of all, even the chorus, colorful and fresh and clear. The triumphant scene in the second act was a thrilling scene. The ballet in this act was superb, their costumes strikingly attractive, and their choreography outstanding.

Fine Voices.
But greater than these attributes—all of the principal characters had exceptionally fine voices. Judging by the crowd that only about half filled the Fox theater, Atlantans are more or less unaware that in their midst is an opera company that is what it takes to put on a "swell show."

I recommend that they see "Madame Butterfly" at the matinee today, and "Carmen" tonight if they don't want to miss something really fine.

Harold Shared.
Norina Greco, who was making her debut in the role of Aida, was vocally and dramatically equipped for this difficult role, and the rich beauty of her voice and the flexibility it possessed straightaway endeared her to the listeners.

Sharing honors with Miss Greco was Lyuba Sendorova, also appearing for the first time in Atlanta, in the role of Amneris. Colorful and dramatic was the texture of her voice, and she used it with fine artistry.

Sydney Rayner, in the tenor role of Rhamdes, revealed a voice of unusually beautiful texture, and at the same time possessing great power. His vocal interpretation of the role was thrilling, even if his acting was a trifle stiff.

Richard Wentworth (Dick Holtzclaw to Atlantans) was accorded an ovation as he returned to his home town in the role of the King of Egypt. He said backstage before the first act that it was the most thrilling moment of his career to have his home town greet him with such a storm of applause as he stepped out on the stage. His singing before himself.

After testifying that Negroes were called for jury service in previous terms of court, he returned to the role of judge and denied a motion to quash the jury.

The motion alleged Negroes had been excluded.

California Visitors Will Receive Cordial Welcome Here in March

By Sally Forth.

IN JUST a few weeks Josephine Williford Morrison and her beautiful twin daughters, Frances and Gertrude Morrison, will receive cordial welcome from their Atlanta relatives and friends. They begin their trek across the continent from Oakland, Cal., where they have resided for several years, and will visit Mrs. Frances G. Brooks, their grandmother, and Mildred Williford at the Ponce de Leon apartments.

The attractive young girls are enrolled at high school, but will lay aside their studies for the time being to come to Atlanta. Frances and Gertrude and their mother will be feted at informal parties during their visit here in March.

Business interests may prevent Louis Morrison from accompanying his family to Atlanta, but he fully intends to return to his native health if he can arrange his affairs. Frances and Gertrude are twelve years old and this will be their first visit here in five years, since they moved with their parents to the Pacific coast.

ATLANTA'S loss will be Cincinnati's gain when Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Smith and their attractive young sons, Hamilton and Richard Riley, leave April 1 to reside in the Ohio city.

Mr. Smith, representative of a prominent Augusta family, has been widely popular in Atlanta since coming here to reside a number of years ago. Mrs. Smith is the former Helen Coyne Riley, of Syracuse, N. Y., who came to the city ten years ago as a representative of the Juillard Foundation of New York. Since that time she has endeavored herself to a host of friends here, both on account of her charming personality and her unusual musical gifts. Possessing an exquisite soprano voice in addition to being a talented pianist, she has contributed generously of her time and talents to the city's various cultural and philanthropic organizations. She studied at the Juillard Conservatory in New York and was chosen as the school's representative for extension work here.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be keenly missed by members of Atlanta's social and cultural circles, for their lovely home on Rivers road is a favorite gathering place for their legion of friends.

FOLLOWING the example set by many eastern college organizations, the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity at Oglethorpe University recently chose as its sponsor lovely Janet Blair, who is the vocalist featured with Hal Kemp's nationally famous orchestra.

Laden with roses and candy, fraternity officers, including John Craig Williams, of Easley, S. C., president; Charles Newton, of Chicago, Ill., vice president; and Mell Turner, of Decatur, warden, recently invaded the Atlanta theater where Miss Blair was appearing in person and crowned her "The Sweetheart of Phi" chapter, Phi Kappa Phi. While cameras flashed, Janet accepted the bouquet of red roses presented her, expressing her appreciation and enthusiasm for the sponsorship.

February 14 Is Set As Education Day

National Hadassah Education Day has been set for February 14 and the Atlanta chapters of Hadassah are actively participating in its observance. Thousands of members will gather on this day, as an expression of their wholehearted belief that in this time of tragedy and bewilderment, knowledge is still the stronghold for the ultimate establishment of peace and understanding among men and nations.

To put information together properly, to interpret it in accordance with a central idea, to make it the basis of considered judgment of principles and events, is the chief aim of the Hadassah education program.

The Atlanta chapters of Hadassah have endeavored in the past to follow this educational program, and in this field have fostered study groups, book reviews, Hebrew classes, Oreg Shabbat, leadership groups, firebrand chats and choral clubs.

In observing National Hadassah Education Day, the Atlanta chapters will hold morning and afternoon sessions of discussion and open forum at Rich's tea room on February 14 at 10:30 o'clock. The chairman of the various educational groups will present an illustrative program. Rabbi Harry H. Epstein will be the guest speaker at the luncheon. An interesting program has been arranged for the evening at the Henry Grady hotel at 8 o'clock. "Elements in the Integration of American Jewish Life" will be the theme and those participating will be Professor Glenn Rainey, Dr. Raymond Wender, Adelbert Freedman and Mrs. H. H. Epstein.

To the person who has only interest in plays is to attend these lectures, it will bring a more intelligent and discriminating understanding of any play, for child or adult. Much interest was shown by the members in the institute, which will be open not only to members of the Junior League, but to all those interested in work with the theater for children."

Mrs. John Ottley Jr., marionette chairman, announced the group was busy at work planning a new play. Puppets are being carved and dressed, and scenery being painted, rehearsals will soon start and the production should be ready by the last of March.

J. P. C. Risks Perfect Record in Nehi Charity Game Tonight

Georgia Tech Plays Brilliantly To Rout Auburn, 53-31

All in the Game
—by Jack Troy

PROSPERITY, S. C., Feb. 6.—And so we turned the corner and there was Prosperity. There was a car in every garage and a chicken in every coop. Undoubtedly it was that Mr. Hoover, was harping about that time.

Major Trammell Scott poked his head out of the window and said to the filling station attendant, "Bud, we seem to be a little crossed up. How do you get to Saluda from here?"

The attendant was very thoughtful and finally he said, "Mister, you really can't get to Saluda from here. Why don't you go to Newberry? That's a better town, anyway."

There was really no need for going to Saluda except that all road maps dictated that Saluda was on the direct route from Columbia to Atlanta. But the filling station attendant had the answer for that.

"You couldn't be going on a direct route to anywhere and wind up in Prosperity, sir."

Silver Street is just up the road a ways from Prosperity. It was, of course, only blind luck and some haphazard directions given by informants along the road that got us to these places, but it may be that we've found our spot.

Prosperity and Silver Street. Mr. Hoover's point is well taken. They're just around the corner in South Carolina.

GAMECOCKS ARE PICKING UP.

Rex Enright, Ted Twomey and Frank Johnson were in the athletic office when we made it from Sumter to Columbia without missing a signal.

Things are picking up for the former Bulldog coaches. They are getting more boys from South and North Carolina at the Gamecock school now.

Most unusual, however, is the attitude of the president of South Carolina. He has removed all pressure. J. Rion McKissick, a former newspaper publisher, is sympathetic to the problems of coaches.

President McKissick has told the staff to do the best it can and has assured Coach Enright and his aides that they will be employed as long as he is president.

It sort of looked like a swap when Catfish Smith went to Ole Miss with Harry Mehre and Frank Johnson came from Ole Miss to South Carolina with Enright. But that really isn't the idea.

Johnson was Enright's favorite athlete of Georgia. And Johnson is the man Enright needed at South Carolina—a boy to take over basketball and leave Ted Petoskey free to work with the Gamecock backfield in spring football drills.

That was the idea back of hiring Johnson—plus the fact that Enright always has held him in high regard.

Rex foresees a brilliant future for Vernon Smith, as does Twomey. They think one day he'll land a big job in some school.

When Rex was asked what else he knew he said, "I really don't know anything definite; it's all suspicion with me."

MAY REQUIRE A COMPASS.

We now have crossed the Little Saluda three times and the Big Saluda four times. If we aren't crossing one, we're crossing the other. The town of Ninety Six is in sight. And it's raining.

The backwoods of South Carolina are very beautiful at this season of the year, however. At one point, just before crossing one of the Saluda rivers again, we looked off in the distance and saw a perfect picture.

There was the old cabin in the pines and a dusky washerwoman was bent over a tub. A trail of smoke filtered through the pines.

But beauty ceases to be impressive when confusion mounts. And we now have determined to find our way out of South Carolina if it takes all summer and if we have to keep crossing the Saluda rivers until the bridges wear out.

What really gets us is that, while we have beaten a trail across those Saluda rivers, we haven't sighted Saluda yet. The boy must have been right. You can't get there from Prosperity. We are no longer on the road map.

LEWIS' 21 POINTS LEAD OFFENSIVE OF JACKET TEAM

Mundorff's Clicking Five Leads by 32 to 17 at Intermission.

By JOHNNY BRABERRY.

Georgia Tech's sophomores reached a new offensive high for the season and Auburn's sophomores dropped to a new low last night as the Yellow Jackets off with a 53 to 31 Southeastern conference victory as a handful of spectators laughed gleefully at the antics of both teams.

There hasn't been a game in the new Tech gymnasium anything like it. There probably won't be another. The Tigers took the floor as tight as the rubber band around a Scotchman's purse, and the Jackets were just in a frame of mind to make the most of Auburn's errors.

Play was wild and the ball bounced crazily at times, and the fans didn't know what to expect because the players themselves didn't. The ball rolled through legs, hands and bounced off heads and did all sorts of crazy things. And then one of the Jackets would grab it and throw it towards the basket and it would fall through.

GET BIG LEAD.

It was in this manner that the Techs built up a commanding 32 to 17 margin at halftime and were never in danger. Auburn never held an advantage after the first five minutes, in which play was extremely close and one got the mistaken idea he was about to witness a close ball game.

Carlton Lewis, the Jackets' sensational sophomore, continued his drive towards the championship scoring leadership by sinking 21 points to lead both teams in the point-manufacturing department. He was followed by Boneyard Johnson and Charlie Burroughs, both having 11 points.

Shag Hawkins led the Tigers with 10 and played a good floor game. This blond sophomore will likely be one of the outstanding centers in Dixie before he gets out of school. His faking is superb and he is accurate with his shots. He is caught walking with the ball a lot but should soon overcome this fault.

BURROUGHS STARS.

Burroughs was the surprise of the Tech team. Coach Roy Mundorff has often sighed as he looked at him and said, "If only he could play offense." Well, last night Burroughs eluded his guard and shot five "crips" and a foul to gain his 11 points.

Tech's foul shooting was superb, the Jackets connecting 13 out of 16 attempts.

Disappointed at his team's showing in the first half, Coach Ralph Jordan, of Auburn, started five sophomores at the start of the second half. It was a team which won 25 to 26 games as freshmen. They did very well in defense as it was five and a half minutes before a field goal was made. However, their offense lacked punch.

Tech's next game is with Vanderbilt Saturday night in Nashville. Auburn plays Georgia Friday in Athens.

G. M. A. CRUSHES JORDAN QUINTET IN 71-24 VICTORY

Cadets Snap Out of Losing Streak With Burst of Power.

By JOHNNY BRABERRY.

G. M. A. snapped out of a long losing streak with a sensational 71-to-24 victory over Jordan High from Columbus Tuesday afternoon on the College Park court. It was the second victory in the Big Seven race for the Cadets and the fourth loss for Jordan High.

G. M. A. displayed its best teamwork of the year and for the first time this season sank a majority of its shots from close range. The Cadets also tightened up on defense, holding the visitors well away from the baskets.

Scoring in the first 10 seconds of play, the Cadets were never headed and gradually increased the lead as the game progressed. G. M. A. led, 18 to 6, at the quarter and 37 to 9 at the half, holding Jordan to a field goal and a foul during the second 10 minutes of play.

Carl Anderson, was the high scorer with 23 points, just one less than the entire Jordan team. Ed Oats followed close behind with 21 points. Poole and Oberle, the G. M. A. guards who held Jordan's forwards to one field goal and a foul each, also broke into the scoring column with 20 points between them. Solley at center continued his fine defensive play, while scoring seven points.

Jordan weakened fast after the first 10 minutes of play and clearly showed the strain of a tough game Friday night while beating the Auburn freshmen five points. G. M. A.'s 71 points were second only for the season, just three less than Jordan and Tech High, sharing top honors with 74 each.

It was the Purples' sixth win against two defeats and the eighth straight loss for Commercial. Joe Gaston, Charlie Deese and Edelstein shared scoring honors for the Purples, though Gaston's 16 points were two more than those of Edelstein and one more than Deese.

Boys' High led, 21 to 13, at the quarter, increased the lead to 32 to 21 at the half and coasted most of the way in the second half.

'Pinky' Lipscomb Has Pneumonia
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 6.—(P)—Vanderbilt basketball stock dropped sharply today with the announcement that Albert "Pinky" Lipscomb, all-South-eastern conference forward high in the race for individual scoring honors, is ill with pneumonia.

Lipscomb, who has shared the Commodores' scoring burden with Captain Ross Hanna this season, played only four minutes against Alabama last Saturday night. Suffering from influenza, he was taken to a hospital yesterday and his condition grew worse today.

PROGRESSIVE ACE GETS SET

Sox Will Give Yankees Fight, Jim Foxx Says

By MELVIN PAZOL.

A double-attraction feature program will be offered basketball fans tonight at the Jewish Progressive Club when the J. P. C. varsity tackles the strong Nehi quintet from Columbus and the J. P. C. Cubs battle Sears-Roebuck for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund campaign.

The first game will start at 7:15 o'clock, and the main battle at 8:30 o'clock.

What previously shaped up as just another game for the headliner has taken on new significance following the upset victory Nehi gained over the New York Celtics Monday night.

Feared Nehi early in the season, but the Columbus squad has been materially strengthened since their appearance here. The addition of several players to the squad was enough, but no one thought their play had been stepped up enough to master the Celtics, perennial masters of the hardwood court.

The return game, therefore, should be a natural. Nehi will be favored on the basis of their Celtic victory and will be out to even the count in the series with the Progressives.

Curry Hubbard, Nehi forward, was unstoppable against the New York pro five, sinking 20 points, which was the same number accounted for by Nat Hickey, high scorer for the Celtics. On "set" shots he was almost perfect, aiding his team to maintain the lead most of the last half. On one period late in the game Nehi led by six points.

The Progressives will enter the game with a perfect record of 14 straight victories at stake, having beaten some of the best teams in the south. Nehi, after a slow start, has come along fast, and will be ready to shoot the works.

PROGRESSIVES ARE SET.
Coach Lancy plans to start the same lineup that has begun the past few games: Ben Browdy and Hyman Kutz forwards; Steve Browdy, center; Greenberg and Ginsberg, guards. The Columbus team's lineup will probably be the same that did so well against the Celtics: Homan and Jones, forwards; Smith, center; Riddle and Hubbard, guards.

The preliminary game will be a real battle, too, for the Cubs barely eked out a 42-38 victory over Sears-Roebuck two weeks ago. Which means that for those who can crowd into the small J. P. C. auditorium one of the best basketball programs of the season will be offered.

The game will be completely a charity affair. Even the referees have graciously donated their services. Johnny Chambers, a "Kichel" will officiate gratis, and all expenses of the contest will be borne by the two teams.

Tickets are on sale at Parks-Chambers, Trammell Scott's and Central Jewelry, and will also be sold at the game. The price is 75 cents per person, and no passes will be honored.

National Champion Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., led the other favored players into the second round with a 4-and-3 victory over Clara Callender, of Long Beach, California.

Defending Champion Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., was forced to go an extra hole before she disposed of Mrs. DeWitt Untermeyer, of Rumson, N. J., 1 up on the 19th hole.

In another extra-hole match, Mrs. Briggs S. Cunningham, of Green Farms, Conn., defeated Mrs. Marion Hochheimer, of White Plains, N. Y., 1 up.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Unpleasant weather and a muddy track proved to the liking of Mrs. V. Wyse's Oracles today and the four-year-old filly easily captured the Marjil Gras handicap, one of the principal winter features at the fair grounds.

It was her first victory in four starts this year, but she finished a length and a half in front of the favored Tow Rope in 1:48 flat for the mile and 70 yards. The winner, good for $7.40 for $2 in the mutuels, had a 12-pound weight advantage over Tow Rope.

Wedding Man was third. Willie Crump's speedy colt, Royal Man, triumphed in the six-furlong Key Largo purse that featured the day at Hialeah, covering the route in 1:19 4/5 to beat J. E. Widener's favored Town Boy by four lengths.

The winner, a $10.90 for $2 shot in the betting, broke fast and was never threatened as Jockey Jack Flinchum gave a smooth riding exhibition.

Betty's Bobby, which the H. and H. stock farm purchased from the E. R. Bradley stable earlier in the day, came home third, nine lengths back of the victor.

Bob McCoy has added his name to the list of pinmasters who will participate in the second annual staging of the Metropolitan Atlanta Invitation Championships for men on the circuit of three separate alleys this Saturday afternoon and evening.

The guaranteed first prize of $30 will have the bowlers bearing down for their best scores as they send the pin boys to the gutter with a volley of powerful deliveries directed for strikes and heavy counts. The contest will open at the uptown Luck Strike alleys 2 o'clock, with five games scheduled at that hour on the first floor of that center. For the second five games, the players will move to the second floor drives at 4 o'clock, with the final five games scheduled on the downtown alleys at 7:30 o'clock. Fast and furious pin scoring is definitely assured.

Grace Cunningham paced the scoring of Carithers-Wallace-Courtney five, of the Ladies City league, in a match with the Columbus Coca-Cola team, on the Columbus alleys over the week end. Miss Cunningham had a 341 series, with games of 98-121 and 112, though her team dropped the match to the Columbusists on the total pin fall basis, despite the fact that they won two of the three games bowled.

The Federal Reserve Bank bowlers gained added laurels to the chain of victories Saturday afternoon as they defeated the First National Bank in a return match by a count of 1,641 to 1,543. Tom Luck, top average Federal Reserve player, paced the bankers with the top series of the contest. However, Charles Hall plans to get his First National five in trim for another attempt at "scalping" the Reserve's.

Q. Harbison's 235 series and H. Harbison's single game of 125 won special prizes in the Commercial league last week.

Pitchers' Sore Arms Is All Laziness--Ruel

Johnson Needed No Help; Batters Knew His Pitches, Too!

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6.—(P)—Herold D. (Muddy) Ruel, Chicago White Sox coach, started talking about the immortal Walter Johnson today and wound up calling modern pitchers lazy.

"Why, I know pitchers who've got the idea they're not supposed to go more than half a game," said Ruel, who was a great catcher in his day.

"A lot of this is the fault of managers who tell their pitchers to go hard as they can for six innings. They've got most of these hurlers too lazy to get in shape to pitch a full game. They talk of weakening, of sore arms; why, they're lazy, that's all."

It's a matter of getting into condition, insisted Ruel, who handled Johnson in the Big Train's heyday with the Washington Senators.

"Walter never faded in the seventh," Ruel said. "Grover Cleveland Alexander never needed help, nor Herb Pennock, nor dozens of others. A pitcher's not a major league pitcher if he can't go nine innings."

"Now, that Johnson—he would pitch one day, a full game. Next day you'd see him out there for a full half hour throwing to a batter—really throwing, too. And he'd field every ball as the batter knocked it back to him. That was keeping every part of him in shape."

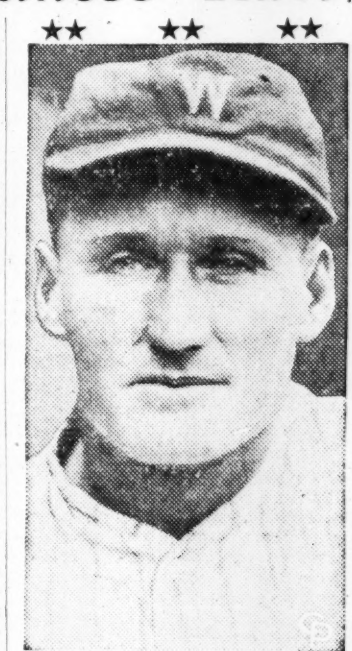

"Walter Johnson was so good," he declared, "that for years every batter in the American league knew what he was going to pitch—and still couldn't hit him."

"I'm telling you that Johnson stood out there for years and never changed his routine. The first pitch would be a fast ball, right in there. The next one would be a fast one, right in there."

"Then, with two strikes on the hitter, Walter'd throw his curve. It wasn't much of a curve, either, but Walter thought it was wonderful. I used to try to get him to change. 'Let's cross 'em up this time,' I said one day. 'Throw that curve in here once in a while for the first strike.'"

"'Well, Muddy,' he replied, 'I've been getting along pretty good this way.'"

"Now, what could I say in reply to that—to Walter Johnson? So he just went on doing pretty good for 20 years."

WALTER JOHNSON.

Two Pointers Set Hot Pace in National

MERCER MILLIE, JAVELIN TURN IN BRILLIANT WORK

15 More Dogs Still Must Compete in Trials at Sumter.

By GEORGE M. ROGERS.

SUMTER, S. C., Feb. 6.—Two pointers from Cleveland, Ohio, set new standards today in the National Amateur Association of Field Trial Clubs championship trials for the blue birds country around Sumter, Javelin, owned by W. W. Vandevere, and Mercer Millie, owned by B. C. Goss, both of Cleveland, drew the first of the day's two-hour courses and were dropped down promptly at 3 o'clock this morning. Javelin was credited with five brilliant covers and one back, while Mercer Millie had four finds, a back and one unproductive point. Their ground work far surpassed any of the 16 starters that had their opportunities yesterday and today.

However, there are 15 more to go, among them Tipsy Topsy, owned by Raymond Hongland, of Cartersville, Ga., twice runner-up in this event, and Nephew Carolina Jake, owned by Dr. W. F. Vail, Greenville, Conn., the only dog to have won this title that is here to defend it. Jake won this championship in 1928 when it was held at Waynesboro, Ga.

Other starters today were Peerless Decision, owned by J. H. Hinz, of Cleveland, Ohio, Braced with Homerun Airport, owned by Miss Claudia Phelps, of Aiken, S. C., both ran consistent races, but failed to find more than two bevy each, and this work was not definite and high class. Huhling Equipoise, owned by M. G. Dudley, of Greensboro, N. C., and Allegheny School Girl, owned by A. C. Cashman, of Harrisburg, Pa., were taken up after their first hour. Both dogs did not show to advantage. The final brace of the day to face the long grind of 120 minutes hunting in briars, brush and sedge were Gobbler, large white and black pointer owned by Sigo Farkas, of Albany, Ga., and Speckled Dan's Rex, owned by B. C. Goss, of Cleveland. Both dogs work well but did not show in front as often as they should.

'Jim Thorpe Was the Greatest'

They were often to the sides. Rex checked in with three good bevy finds, while Gobbler had only one. Both finished, but were showing the effects of the work.

SEVEN POINTERS. The eight dogs running tomorrow happen to be seven pointers and one setter. The pointers are Bobbitts Blockout, owned by L. M. Bobbitt, Winston-Salem, N. C.; McEubbs, owned by J. H. Velotte, Williamsport, Pa.; Appalachian Lad, winner of last week's open all-age over these same grounds, owned by W. W. PURPLE BOXERS FIGHT THURSDAY

Boys' High's boxing squad will hold a final workout this afternoon in the Henry Grady gymnasium in preparation for its opening matches with G. M. A. Thursday night in the Grady gym.

A majority of the Purple boxers are members of the senior class and are more than anxious to make this season the greatest in Boys' High history.

Savannah High was originally scheduled to be the Purples' opponents in the first match, but snow two weeks ago caused a postponement. The Savannah team is still on the schedule for a later date.

Coch Draper of the Boys' High team said Tuesday afternoon that there will be at least 10 and probably a dozen matches on Thursday's card as a special section of the gymnasium will be reserved for Atlanta's boxing fans.

G. M. A.'s boxers likewise will hold final drills this afternoon in the College Park gymnasium. The Cadets have continued work since the opening of school in January and haven't missed a single afternoon workout.

Closing of city schools prevented the Boys' High team from working out week before last, but with better weather, the Purples have made up for the lost time.

SUHR, PHILLIES REACH IMPASSE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(AP) Gus Suhr and the Philadelphia National league baseball club have reached an impasse, the husky first baseman disclosed today. Suhr wanted his salary upped and the club notified him it couldn't afford it.

"They have treated me so nicely I don't know what to do about it," Suhr said. "I feel that I am worth a little more money than was offered, but at the same time I don't want to offend my bosses."

Suhr, who operates a liquor store in near-by Millbrae, expects to have the matter straightened out soon.

Double Bill Slated At East Point Tonight A double-header will be played on the Russell High court in East Point Thursday night.

In the first game Kirkwood Presbyterian girls play Lithonia girls, while Bishop Oil and Hapeville Aces play the second half of the twin bill.

John Crawford Recalls Innovations of Old Coach, Pop Warner.

By RALPH MCGILL. This begins in a bookshop. The man in the book has said, just the other day, that John Crawford, an old Carlisle Indian football player and who had been at Georgia Tech as a student for a couple of years, was in town.

So, yesterday he came in the office and sat down. He sat there, the smoke from a cigarette curling up into the quiet of the office air, and talked about Hungary, Germany, France and London. He speaks several foreign languages fluently.

By his hat, which he put down on a chair, was a thick manuscript. It was a life of Tom Paine, the famous patriot of our own Revolution.

John Crawford, scholar and student, is not many years, as years go, from being a scared kid on a Blackfoot Indian reservation in Montana, going off to school at Carlisle.

Well, this is a great country. Great things happen.

SUBSTITUTE END. John Crawford, Blackfoot Indian, was a substitute end at Carlisle under Pop Warner.

"Pop was a great coach. He was mean, but he had a bit of driving. That's why Haskell Institute didn't have such great teams. They needed Pop to be back there driving him on. I liked him. But I was afraid of him."

"I was there in 1911 when Pop invented that play of putting the ball under the back of a player's jersey on the kickoff. That was against Harvard. We ran back the kickoff and beat Harvard, 69 to 0, that day. We had a swell time, laughing at the Harvard's running around trying to find that ball. Pop was smart. I guess he invented more plays than any other coach."

"It was against Penn that year we came out with half a football sewed on our jerseys. After every play a fellow merely crooked his arm around the ball on his jersey and everyone was carrying the ball. It worked swell."

WELCH'S IDEA. "No, Pop didn't think of that. Pete Welch did. We were always trying to think up things like that."

I asked, knowing in advance what the answer would be, whom he thought to be the greatest player he ever saw. "Why ask that?" he grinned. "You know I'd say Jim."

No one seriously questions that Jim Thorpe, the great Carlisle athlete who was the greatest all-around athlete the world ever knew. There was nothing he could not do well with just one exception. He could not hit a low curve ball. And a lot of his pale-face brethren have the same trouble.

"Jim would fit right into this modern play," said Crawford. "He could pass and receive and do anything a little better than anyone else."

TWINS BRONCO. "My idea of his greatest play? Well, it wouldn't be any of the famous ones. I recall the Syracuse game at Syracuse in 1919. They had been saying that Jim was just an end-runner, that he couldn't hit the line. That day he wouldn't do anything else but hit the line. He hit the line nine times and we had two touchdowns. I've seen a lot of line backers in my time but none better than Jim."

"I saw him four or five weeks ago. In New York. He weighed about 220 when he played pro ball. He weighs about 240 now. Jim is well over 50. He looks great. Not doing anything much. A little work in Hollywood."

GUYON WAS GOOD. "I heard Joe Guyon was coaching. He was good. But none quite like Jim. He was the greatest Olympic athlete, the greatest football player. He was good anywhere, the backfield or line. The first two years he came to Carlisle he ran away and went back to the reservation. Well, those were the days. We had a lot of fun."

John Crawford is on his way to Hollywood lecturing here and there, on Indian life and history. He hopes to sell that scenario on Tom Paine. I hope he does.

Evening College Beats Hapeville

The Georgia Evening College Redbirds regained their winning stride Monday night when they defeated the strong Hapeville Aces quintet, 59-50, on the Y. W. C. A. court. Every one of the ten players used by Coach Layton contributed to the score, with Hickman and Feldman setting the pace with 15 and 14 points respectively. Carswell was the outstanding star on defense. Teagle, Brown and McCoy were the stars for the losers.

The Redbirds journey to Rockmart, Ga., Thursday night, where they play the strong Goodbye Mills five, which holds a 30-29 win this year over the Atlanta Cracker.

Les Scarsella's Wife Killed in Auto Wreck LANCASTER, Ky., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Tragedy overtook Les Scarsella, Boston Red Sox first baseman, while he was en route to Florida to begin spring training.

His 24-year-old wife and her 16-year-old cousin, Helen Vassil, both of Cincinnati, were injured fatally when Scarsella's car collided with a truck near here yesterday.

The player and his two-year-old daughter, Elaine, escaped with minor injuries.

Two occupants of the truck were hurt slightly.

Mrs. Scarsella died in a Danville hospital. Miss Vassil was killed instantly.

Bobby Feller Misses Fete In His Honor

Hurler Was Due To Receive Writers 'Most Valuable' Award.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 6.—(AP) It was "worse than being late for your own wedding," but young Bobby Feller had to tell Cleveland baseball writers he couldn't get to their annual dinner tonight.

The Cleveland Indians' prize fireballer planned to take a chartered plane from Memphis, but muggy weather to the north prevented its flight.

Feller, who has been vacationing in New Orleans, was to have received the scribes' annual award as the Indians' most valuable player at their "ribs and roasts" dinner.

"I should've left by train sooner, but the weather was so pretty in New Orleans I never dreamed I would be delayed," he moaned between long distance calls to Cleveland. "I left New Orleans by train after trying all day to charter a plane. I had hoped to charter a plane out of Memphis in time to arrive in Cleveland for the banquet, but it's no go."

"It will be the first such award I've ever received and boy, did I want to be there," the youngster sighed.

After telegraphing his acceptance speech and apologies, Feller flew back to New Orleans via regular airline. The weather is clear to the south.

TOM FARR SIGNS TO MEET LOUIS

No Date Set Yet for Return Match With Champion.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Tommy Farr, British heavyweight, said today that he had accepted terms for a return fight with Champion Joe Louis in the United States.

"I do not know what date, but I expect it will be some time in June," Farr said in announcing the deal today that he had accepted terms for a return fight with Mike Jacobs, New York promoter.

He added that he was not considering other fights in America. "I only want that return with Louis," he said.

JACOBS SAYS FIGHT MAY BE IN SUMMER. New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs said today he had offered Tommy Farr, British heavyweight, a fight with Champion Joe Louis, but hadn't "heard officially" whether he was able to get out of the army.

"I don't know when I could give him a chance at Louis, probably during the summer," assuming Louis still was heavyweight champion," the promoter said.

Reports from England said Farr's application to join the Royal Air Force was rejected because of defective vision.

OWNERS DECLARE LANDIS WILL NOT HAVE ANY SAY-SO

Minor-Major Pact and the Judge's Expire at Same Time.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Taking cognizance of the many proposals, including one from Commissioner K. M. Landis for reconstructing the framework of organized baseball, the National league called today for an early start on a new major-minor agreement.

President Ford Erick was authorized to appoint a committee of four to meet with similar committees from the American league and the National association (minor leagues) to draft a code to replace the one that expires January 12, 1942.

The league issued this statement: "Many proposals have been made to change or clarify the present rules and regulations in baseball."

"Inasmuch as the major-minor league agreement expires in 1942, customarily necessitating the appointment of committees by both the major leagues and the National association, the National league hereby authorizes and directs the president of the National league to appoint on or before March 1, 1940, a committee of four, including himself, to consider the various proposals above referred to."

APPOINT COMMITTEE. "The National league respectfully requests the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues to appoint in due course a committee of like number and purpose to co-operate with the committee of the two major leagues, the first joint meeting of such committees to be held at the earliest feasible date."

Erick said the American league already had expressed a desire for such a joint consideration and that he hoped the minor leagues would be able to name their representatives within a few weeks so that all parties could get started on the task quickly.

At the annual winter meeting in Cincinnati last December the National league and the minors voted for amendments to the present agreement which would have forced Landis to relax his rigid restrictions on farm systems. The American league rejected them and in the joint major league meeting last night the deciding vote that tossed out the proposed amendments. Since then he has tightened the bans on farm holdings and suggested that they be done away with entirely.

LOOPS TO DECIDE. Some National league club representatives at today's meeting pointed out that whatever regulations were included in the new major-minor agreement, whether they increased or decreased the limits of farm operations, would be entirely a matter for the leagues themselves to decide and would not be subject to the approval or disapproval of Landis, whose term, incidentally, also ends January 12, 1942.

The schedule for 1940 was adopted by the senior circuit today, but will be subject to scattered revisions because both the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals have arranged to play night baseball since the program was drawn up.

Cincinnati, the champion opening day town of baseball as well as the defending pennant-holder, has drawn the Chicago Cubs for the inaugural opposition April 16. In the other opener Brooklyn will be at Boston, Philadelphia at New York and Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

... FIGHT FOR LOVE ...

Star Is Told to Invite Her Mother To Dinner to Meet Nina and Bob

By SYLVIA TAYLOR.

Star Bright is constantly humiliated by her mother, Mamie, who refers to her as "the little girl" and "the little thing." Mamie is a domineering woman who has been driving a truck at night. At a party given at the home of Judge and Mrs. Bennett by their daughter, Sheila, Star forgets her diffidence. Leslie Reed, son of a prominent physician, dances with her and again with her. She dances well as her mother had insisted upon dancing lessons even if the grocery bill went unpaid. Mamie's ambition, as her child's name indicated, being that Star should shine on the stage. Leslie drives Star home but when Mamie, frowny and querulous, answers his repeated ringing of the doorbell, Star hurries in with a despairing good-night, fearing she will never see him again. She is more determined than ever the next day to get away from her home when the phone rings and her typewriting teacher sends her to Nina Lambert, a novelist, who wants a secretary to live in her house and be on call when she feels like dictating. Mamie objects, recalling the money she spent on dancing lessons, but Star says she won't go on the stage. She meets many interesting people at Mrs. Lambert's and likes the work. Mamie calls making a demand for what is left of her small salary. Nina's son, Bob, just out of college, is at home awaiting a job and he and Star fall in love. Star thinks there is a difference in Nina's manner toward her, but Bob reassures her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VIII.
All the way to the shabby apartment house Star was trying to figure out the best way of approaching the subject, finally deciding that bribery would be as good a method as any. She would buy Mamie a new dress to wear with the understanding that she should live up to it. Something dignified and ladylike. The best dress Star could afford.

Fortunately her mother was in a tractable mood. The apartment was less disorderly than usual and Mamie was sitting by the window like any other housewife, darning a pair of socks. The domestic task made her seem more maternal. Her gray hair was combed neatly instead of straggling as it so often did about her face.

Star thought, "I wish Bob could meet her now," but she had refused his offer to accompany her.

Mamie said, "I thought it was about time for you to be coming. Did you bring my money?"

Star smiled and sank into a chair without removing her hat.

"Do I ever forget it?"

"No," Mamie admitted, "You've been pretty good about it. Not that it's much but it keeps me from having to beg it from Joe. He's getting stingier than ever."

This time, however, Star had no intention of listening to the story of Joe's misbehavior.

"I've something to tell you," she said. "You remember the picture of Mrs. Lambert's son you saw on her desk?"

Mamie nodded.

"He's come home and fallen in love with me. We're engaged," Star continued feeling as she said it that it was more like a dream than ever. It couldn't be true.

"Well what did I tell you? Didn't I say you two ought to make a match of it?"

"You must have had a premonition," Star admitted.

"When are you going to be married?" Mamie asked.

"In October. Bob has the promise of a position in New York and wants me to go with him."

"That's certainly a swell break," her mother commented.

She seemed so much more reasonable than usual that Star's spirits rose. If only she could make her realize how important it was.

Mamie's unusually quiet manner made it easier to talk of this important matter than Star had expected.

"Mrs. Lambert would like for you to come to dinner next Monday," she said. "Bob wants to meet you and I want you to meet him."

How false those words sounded, but strangely enough they seemed to please Mamie who replied, "I told you Mrs. Lambert was a real lady. Naturally she would want us to get together since I'm the mother of the bride. But what am I going to wear?"

"You needn't worry about that."

I'm going to buy you a dress this afternoon."

Mamie's excitement was pitiful. She became as tractable as a child as she accompanied Star downtown and permitted her to choose a dress.

"I'd like something with a little color in it better," Mamie admitted, "but since you're going to pay for it I'll take your advice."

Star would have nothing but black, selecting a plain one of sheer material, with long lines and graceful sleeves.

When they had returned to the apartment, she said anxiously, "Just one thing, Mother, I wish you'd do for me."

"Oh, sure," Mamie replied good-naturedly. "I'll behave. I won't embarrass you."

"I want to be proud of you," Star said honestly.

Mamie waved her hand.

"I understand how you feel and it's only natural when you're planning to marry such a nice young man. You can depend on me."

It was the nearest to an affectionate understanding they had ever achieved. Star was so grateful she threw her arms about her mother's neck and kissed her—a gesture she hadn't made for years—crying, "Thank you so much. It means such a lot to me."

For one moment she felt as if Mamie really loved her as she patted her on the shoulder and promised she would be good.

"I know how to act," she boasted. "You wait and I'll show you."

As Monday approached, Star became conscious of a sense of strain which was almost unbearable. Even Bob, blithely unconscious of the reason, complained that she was not herself.

"Something is worrying you, Star! Why won't you tell me what it is?"

She denied it, protesting finally that she was tired. Too much excitement in the three short weeks since Bob's return. But certainly she had never had less work to do, Nina professed herself in no mood to write.

"I'll feel as if I'm taking money on false pretenses if you don't get busy," Star said.

"I'm much too interested in a real love story to write about an imaginary one," Nina assured her.

"But what about the serial you promised to start? The editor telephoned about it yesterday when you were out."

"Tomorrow," Nina cried gayly. "Or next week. Or maybe not until you are married."

"But, Mrs. Lambert, I'll be gone then!"

Nina laughed.

"And I shall have a new secretary. A plain one with no appeal for my boy friends." She spoke lightly, but a somber note ran like a black thread through her brightly colored words. Star sensed it at the same time reproaching herself for being so sensitive. Nina hadn't minded in the least when her friends tried to flirt with Star. She had even told the girl that her own daughter couldn't have behaved better. "I mustn't take everything so seriously," she thought, reminded herself of the many kind things Nina had done. "Look at her attitude about her own engagement. Could anything be more generous or a truer indication of affection?"

On Monday morning Star telephoned her mother, finding her excited but in a good humor.

"Everything is okay," Mamie assured her.

When Star suggested going over to help her dress, Mamie insisted it wouldn't be necessary.

"But I want to," Star protested. "Then we'll take a taxi and afterward Bob and I will take you home."

It sounded foolproof. Star thought, telling Nina her plan.

"Why don't you let Bob come for you?" Nina suggested.

"It's rather hard to find," Star evaded. "Easier just to take a taxi if you don't mind."

Nina replied cheerfully, "Suit yourself, my dear! But be sure to be here not later than seven."

Star wore one of the simple pale blue dresses Nina had urged her to buy earlier in the summer. She reached her mother's early in the afternoon. Mamie had kept her promise and at Star's suggestion had had her hair washed and waved. Star gave her a manicure, using a light rosy polish.

"It's too light," Mamie complained, holding out her hand.

"It's lovely," Star insisted. "You have such nice nails, Mother, if you'd take care of them."

Mamie shrugged but she looked pleased.

"Nobody can have nice nails and be doing dishes and housework."

"Mrs. Epperson does," Star said unwisely. "She keeps her nails perfectly and she works a lot harder than you do."

"Don't mention that woman to me," Mamie snorted. "It's going to be a real treat to sit at the table and have her wait on me."

There was nothing wrong with her mother's appearance, Star admitted, feeling some of her apprehension disappear. The dress fitted perfectly and its long flowing lines gave Mamie a dignity which softened the harshness of her features and made her look 10 years younger.

"You are simply perfect!" Star cried with rare emotion. "I wish you could look like this all the time."

"Maybe I could if I didn't have anything else to do," Mamie said shrewdly. "Maybe I will if I ever have a nice little income of my own."

This was the first hint that she had made to Star's future responsibility in the matter of helping her, but Star refused to be upset by it. Tonight should not be marred by arguments. So she did not reply but ordered the taxi and, because it was so warm, told Mamie that she need not wear a coat. She could see that there was a definite resemblance between them as she gave themselves a final glance in the living room mirror. Mamie saw it, too.

"Any one could certainly tell you are my daughter," Mamie remarked.

THEATER—Chester Morris and Margo, two stars who have created personal armies of fans for their work in radio, stage and screen roles, will appear as guests of the "Star Theater" in a radio version of Willard Mack's "Kick In," over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. They will be introduced by Burns Mantle, the noted drama anthologist.

From Hollywood, the music, merriment and mirth half-hour is in charge of Master of Ceremonies Ken Murray, ably assisted by Kenny Baker, Frances Langford, Irene Ryan and David Brookman's Orchestra.

The program includes:

"Night and Day."

"It's a Blue World."

"Little Red Fox."

FRED ALLEN—Fred Allen, in the manner of the biographical motion pictures which glorified Bell, de Lessers, and Pasteur, will pay tribute to another great mind, Belvedere Trawl, with the assistance of the Mighty Allen Art Players during his program over WSB at 8 o'clock tonight. Trawl, according to Mr. Allen, is an Englishman who invented the tea bag.

Rounding out the hour-long program of mirth and melody will be Allen's usual all-star cast consisting of Portland Hoffa, Harry von Zell, Wynn Murray, the Merry Macs and Peter Van Steeden's orchestra. Margaret Melich, singing telegram operator, will be interviewed as the "Person You Didn't Expect to Meet."

COMEDY—George Burns and Gracie Allen will whip up some wacky sketches and Gasteur, will sing a new song to the accompaniment of Ray Noble's orchestra as highlights of their comic half-hour show over WGST at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Frank Perker will come through with a few quips and a popular song as his contribution to the proceedings.

DRAMA—Charles Boyer will essay a departure from his customary "Hollywood Playhouse" dramas during the broadcast to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight when he offers Edmond Rostand's famous "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Because of the length and importance of the play, Boyer will present it in two parts, with the second half heard next week. The story concerns the romantic adventures of a famous French duellist, who is inordinately sensitive about his uncommonly large nose.

He appealed to all to help prevent the tremendous annual crime bill of more than 15 billion dollars by helping to provide education and work for youths.

"Instead of throwing the young offender into reformatories where he merely may consume his schooling in crime, Optimists feel that a better solution to the problem is to make friends with the youngster and get him started out on the right foot," he said.

"Optimism and Americanism are the two isms we must encourage in this country. Never added," he said, in words by J. W. Humphreys, president of the Atlanta Optimist Club.

AH, THE LIFE These young folks at Lake Ronkonkoma, L. I., have no quarrel with Old Man Winter. They like the way he freezes things. It means exciting spins in the ice boat. That's a 14-inch layer of ice the boat is skimming over. Scores enjoy the winter sports up north.
